Tammany Republicans Endeavor to Disturb the Convention—They Refuse to Accept the Report of the Committee, and Afterward Withdraw.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 27.—The first day of the Convention has been consumed in the settlement of the difficulty growing out of the rival delegations from New-York City. As stated in my dispatch last night, there was a general disposition among the country delegates to so dispose of the question as to restore harmony in that City; and accordingly the Committee on Contested Seats reported, with only one dissenting voice, in favor of admitting both delegations, each delegate being allowed half a vote. Coupled with this was a resolution approving the action of the State Committee in reorganizing the party in New-York. This the Tammany delegates proposed to consider a vital point, and received the report with shouts of derision. After a long discussion on the question of adopting the report or accepting a substitute offered by Mr. WARD, which said nothing about approving the action of the State Committee, the vote was taken and the report of the Committee on Contested Seats was adopted. SINCLAIR TOUSEY then addressed the Convention, stating that he was instructed by his delegation to say that after the action of the Convention it would accept no such courtesy as to be admitted to seats with half a vote, and they would accordingly withdraw. The Tammany delegation then marched out of the Hall and received the cheers of the great mass of the Convention at their exit. This action confirms the belief entertained by many that notwithstanding their professions of a desire for harmony, they really did not wish a union of the party in New-York, but were determined to carry out the object for which they came here, to perpetuate the divisions in the party in New-York, and thus play into the hands of their Tammany employers. Their whole course since they came here shows that their main object was to prevent harmony in the Convention, and if possible to break it up in a row. They had a gang of fifty or more roughs here from New-York, who made their first demonstration this morning by attempting to break in the doors of the hall where the Convention met, before the time fixed for the meeting of the Convention. They next tried during the morning session to break up the Convention by rushing around the speaker's stand and shouting at the top of their voices and shaking their fists in the Chairman's face during the roll-call of the Brooklyn delegation from the Ninth District. The leader of the gang was MARK LANIGAN, one of the Tammany Republican delegation, and he was backed up by a crowd of roughs, among whom was Ex-Policeman LAMBRECHT and others. None of them, except LANIGAN, had any business on the floor of the Convention, and are said to have gained admission by forged tickets. Every attempt at disturbance proceeded from the gang accompanying the Tammany delegation, and from no other source. Many of the country delegates who were at first inclined to favor the Tammany delegation were so disgusted with their conduct that they finally expressed themselves glad when they retired from the Convention. Republicans of New-York City can now go before the people without any taint of Tammany influence hanging to the skirts of their organization. The State Convention, by a large majority has explicitly repudiated the Tammany Republicans, and declared the new organization the only legitimate exponent of the Republican Party in New-York. Every one is satisfied at the turn the affair has taken, and feels that the party in New-York can now build on a sure foundation. After the retirement of the Tammany Republicans, it being near midnight, the Convention adjourned to 9 A. M. to-morrow. The permanent organization will then be effected, and the candidates on the State ticket nominated.

THE DISCONTENTED DELEGATES.

Since the adjournment of the Convention, the Tammany Republicans are trying to induce the Fenton delegates who voted with them in Convention to join them in holding a separate convention to-morrow, in which they propose to nominate the same State ticket that is nominated by the regular Convention, to indorse the Administration and Gen. GRANT, and then to run opposition tickets for local officers all through the State. This course is thought to have been advised by Senator FENTON, and the palpable effect of it would be to give the next Legislature to the Democracy. It is not decided whether enough delegates will join the movement to make the bolting Convention respectable in point of numbers, but great efforts are to be made during the night to induce members to go into it. It cannot be done without the assent of Senator FENTON, and if the Republican Party shall run two tickets for local offices and throw the next Legislature into the hands of Tammany Hall, TWEED, SWEENY & Co. can thank FENTON for it and prepare to reward him accordingly.

Regular Report of the Proceedings.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Republican State Convention was called to order at 12 o'clock M. by Hon. A. B. CORNELL, Chairman of the State Central Committee. Gen. GEORGE H. SHARPE nominated Hon. ANDREW D. WHITE, of Onondaga, for temporary Chairman, amid applause. Gen. MERRITT, of St. Lawrence County, nominated Hon. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, which was received with cheers. The Chair stated that Mr. DEPEW was not eligible, as his name was not on the list of delegates. A delegate stated that Mr. DEPEW had been sent here as a substitute. The Chair stated that his name would be entered on the list in the place of Mr. LAWRENCE. Mr. A. S. WOOD, in the interest of harmony, named G. HILTON SCRIBNER, of Westchester, and proceeded to enumerate the services performed by Mr. SCRIBNER in behalf of the Republican Party. He appealed to the Convention to organize with peace and harmony. Mr. DEPEW stated that while he appreciated the compliment paid him, he had a duty to perform to his party this Fall, and it should start in the contest with peace and harmony in its ranks. Both the other gentlemen named were good and worthy members of the party, and one of them was the selection of the State Committee—a Committee yet on trial. He concluded by withdrawing, in order that both contesting delegations from New-York shall be admitted to this Convention. He wanted the past buried, and hoped that the Convention would settle the difficulties in New-York. He moved that Mr. SCRIBNER be temporary, and Mr. WHITE permanent Chairman.

CALLING THE ROLL.

The Chair decided the motion out of order, as two motions were already pending. C. SPENCER raised a point of order, that until a temporary Chairman is chosen, no motion to elect a permanent Chairman is in order. The Chair decided the point of order well taken. RUFUS F. ANDREWS appealed from the decision of the Chair. The Chair said he did not recognize the gentleman as a member of the Convention. Mr. ANDREWS said the Chair had no right to say who were or who were not members of the Convention. He had recognized Gen. SHARPE, one of the contesting delegates, and it was his duty to recognize him (Mr. ANDREWS.) The Chair stated that the roll would now be called. Mr. ANDREWS renewed his appeal, insisting upon a decision. The Chair, amid much confusion, called upon Gen. SHARPE and Mr. DEPEW to act as secretaries of the tellers in calling the roll.

A scene of great confusion ensued. WALDO HUTCHINS attempted to speak at the call of the Convention, but the confusion was too great. The Police were called upon the platform to preserve order. The turmoil lasted for some minutes, during which the calling of the roll on taking the vote for Chairman was suspended. Mr. ANDREWS rose to make a motion, but there was so much confusion he could not be heard. The roll was then called, during which WALDO HUTCHINS rose to speak. The Chair called him to order, and then there were loud cries in the Convention for Mr. HUTCHINS. The demand was so strong that Mr. HUTCHINS attempted to come on the platform. The Police were called for to preserve order amid the greatest confusion. Everybody was on his feet, the Chairman rapping and hundreds shouting. This lasted for some minutes, when order was partially restored. At the time of the outbreak the vote stood 95 for WHITE, to 58 for SCRIBNER. Mr. HUTCHINS stated that any interruption was out of order. The roll must be called through. Mr. COCHRANE said the roll was entirely wrong, and this Convention has the power to make it right. [Loud cries for HUTCHINS.] Mr. HUTCHINS said if the Convention would hear him a moment everything would go on right—peace and harmony would prevail. He moved that in all cases of contested seats the names of the delegates be passed over and be referred to the Committee on Credentials.

The greatest confusion prevailed. Mr. ANDREWS renewed his appeal from the decision of the Chair, amid loud cries of all sorts. Mr. HUTCHINS called for his motion. The Chair stated at the request of the contesting delegates that their names would be passed by. Mr. HUTCHINS insisted upon his motion being put. The Chair repeated his decision that the names would be passed by. Mr. HUTCHINS still insisted upon his motion. Mr. BLISS, of Kings County, stated that if the withdrawal of his delegation would conduce to harmony he would withdraw it, but wanted it distinctly understood that he did not acknowledge its irregularity.

By consent the calling of the roll, omitting contesting delegates' names, was proceeded with. When New-York was called, Mr. BAILEY rose and requested that the names be passed over and referred to the Committeee on Credentials. [Applause.]

THE TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION.

ANDREW WHITE was named by 188 delegates; G. HILTON SCRIBNER was named by 159 delegates. The announcement was received with applause. Mr. WALDO HUTCHINS moved that Mr. WHITE's nomination be made unanimous. Carried. Messrs. SCRIBNER and HUTCHINS were appointed a committee to conduct Mr. WHITE to the chair.

MR. WHITE'S SPEECH.

President WHITE, on taking the chair, said:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: Standing as we do near the close of the third Presidential term during which the Republican Party has held supremacy in this nation, we find that the very greatness of the work already done for liberty and order imposes upon us new labors and new duties. I need not recite the events of the first two Administrations, with all their lights and shadows; they have passed into history, to stand as an encouragement not only to all who come after us in this Republic, but to be consulted and admired by all who shall love and long for free institutions in all parts of the world and throughout all time. But besides that glorious record of skill and generalship, of bravery among our soldiers, of far-reaching thought in diplomacy, there is another record not less imperishable, not less honored. It is a record of steadfastness in adversity, of fortitude in calamity, of patriotic instinct amid all the gropings and stumblings, of blinding defeats, of forbearance in victory—the record of the great Republican Party of the Union. But another chapter is begun. We have been making since those events—nay, are we not now making—a history not less worthy. Gentlemen, as certainly as history shall record that the regeneration of the Republic was begun amid blood and tears by ABRAHAM LINCOLN, just so certainly shall it bear witness that it was perfected and brought to its culmination by ULYSSES S. GRANT. It may well encourage us as we glance over this present Administration, due to the foresight and wise choice of the Republican Party. We have seen the strong arm of our honored leader stretched out over the States recently in rebellion quietly and firmly repressing all anarchy, and fostering all that tried to restore prosperity. We have seen the same hand which had done so much to set free those oppressed millions, lead them on to civil and political rights. The same firm barrier, too, we have seen stretched out to protect the wards of the nation on our far Western frontier; the same strong barrier interposed between the red man and the cupidity and revenge that have produced such a dire harvest of miseries. Truly indeed was it recently said by one whom we all revere, by our honored instructor in the ways of freedom, a man who, as you will all bear witness, never said the thing he did not believe—by GERRIT SMITH—that the first President who has ever done justice to the black man and the red man is President GRANT. No less noteworthy has been his financial policy. Having scanned the political horizon, he selected as his Secretary of the Treasury one in whom it saw ability to accomplish the great task laid upon him, and then, despite all clamors or criticism, he stood by him firmly, quietly, and the world knows the result in a vast debt rapidly disappearing, in taxation diminishing, in credit restored, in prosperity coming in as never before. This foreign policy has been no less glorious. The man whom his enemies have called "GRANT, the butcher," has through the instrumentality of an honored son of New-York, negotiated a treaty which shall save more men from butchery, a thousand fold, than all who have fallen gloriously under his lead for national salvation. Disregarding all passion, he has by that same quiet, firm statesmanship obtained from the greatest of foreign maritime Powers more than the most sanguine had hoped, and at the same time, set an example which marks an epoch in the history of international law, and shall in all nations contribute to the substitution of the method of peace for the dire arbitration of war. Just as satisfactorily has he grappled with another great question, cutting through the views of mere theorists, he has recognized the crying need for reforming our civil service, and has inaugurated measures which, sooner or later, shall bear a precious fruitage, and foremost among those selected to do the work is a son of New-York whose voice has rung for justice, purity and truth in all our Republican councils, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. And finally this leader, said to love power, and to disregard the constitutional limits of his authority, although persuaded that he could render a vast service by bringing in a great new territory, with every motive of pride and ambition leading him to carry out this persuasion by every legitimate means, having fully stated the case to the Republic, leaves all to the calm judgment of his fellow-citizens, reiterating his declaration that he has no policy to enforce against the will of the people. This is the policy that has won the great heart of the Republic. Despite all minor criticisms, deeply imbedded in the convictions of the American people is faith in the capacity, integrity and patriotic determination of ULYSSES S. GRANT. But as we turn from the national to State affairs there are yet other causes for encouragement. In our great Metropolis there has been built within the past decade, of years a vast engine, y of fraud that is without parallel in the annals of free nations. We have seen the suffrages of this greatest of American commonwealths time and again weighed down under a City majority utterly monstrous and fictitious. Happily the destruction of this power is now within our reach. But it is within our reach on one condition, and one alone. That Gentlemen, a full and frank harmonizing of all discord among us. Fellow-citizens, I am profoundly impressed with the fact that we stand at this moment at the dividing of the ways. On one course is faction and a dwindling series of minorities; on the other is harmony and victory. Which shall we choose? Gentlemen, I will speak as a Republican. This is no time for factious counsels. I see before me men whose experience is far greater than my own, but on one point my experience has perhaps some value. From my boyhood, I have seen a long series of Conventions deliberate in this city; I have witnessed year after year the same struggle between the "outs and the ins" in every party which has arrived at great power. Within a stone's throw of this place I saw the old Whig Party divide, and that division was the precursor of a speedy national dissolution. Within rifle-shot in another direction I saw another party, which had attained great power, break in pieces; and on the spot where we now stand I saw the Democratic Party separated by factions, and that separation was the prelude of that greater one, which has thrown that party, as I trust, into hopeless minority in this nation. Gentlemen, there is a lesson in this which I leave you to ponder on—a lesson of warning; but there is also a lesson of encouragement. For every one of those divisions was based in some degree upon principle. In the division that now afflicts us it seems to me rather a question of pride of men. Such questions can be compromised. Let us do this. I see here rival delegations from the greatest of our constituencies. On either side stand good men. Why not unite them here and now? Away with mere questions of precedence; away with metaphysics of regularity. The bare fact that such good men and true are here shows that they believe they have a right to be here, and may we not on either side concede it? So too in regard to any repository of the political powers of the party. May we not on either side make every concession? Gentlemen, let us rise above mere local considerations. Are you ready to remand the millions who have been raised from bondage and placed in the full exercise of political rights back into the hands of their life-long oppressors and the allies of those oppressors? Are you willing to commit the great system of national finances and credit to the control of those who have from the first openly or covertly attacked it? Are you ready to place the thrends of your foreign relations to be played by men who never hesitated at embittering our foreign relations if a party cry could be raised thereby? Shall the same gigantic fraud now blooming in your so called Democratic Metropolis be transferred to blossom infinitely more gorgeously at Washington? All depends, humanly speaking, on your action now. If anarchy continues, then have we but one more duty, we can dispense with all others. Let us here and now write the epitaph of the Republican Party. Let a monument be raised in the middle of the New-York Court-house. Let it be surmounted with a fool's bauble on it. Let there be inscribed these appropriate words: "Here lies the Republican Party. It set free four millions of the enslaved, and it made them fit for freedom. It came out victorious from the greatest war any Republic ever encountered. It battled off its enemies at home and baffled them abroad. It contracted vast debt to save the nation, and then paid it in such a manner as to enhance the national credit. It raised a noble brood of heroes and statesmen, and then died of a wretched wrangle over a beggarly array of paltry offices." Friends and Republicans, it shall not be. In the language of our great national standard-bearer, "Let us have peace," and then in those other words of his which rang out from the darkest hours of the war to gladden the nation, we may add, "We propose to move directly on the enemy's works." With such a spirit victory is secure—victory in the State and nation, and from this our action of today shall date a long era of peace, prosperity and victory. And now, in concluding, permit me to return my most sincere thanks for the honor you have conferred on me. I must ask your forbearance and indulgence, while I pledge myself to do all in my power to promote the objects of the Convention. What is the pleasure of the Convention?

On motion Mr. HENRY GLYDON, of Orleans County, and CHARLES H. SWORDS were appointed Secretaries.

Mr. STICKNEY, of Saratoga County, moved the appointment of a committee on contested seats, consisting of two from each judicial district except the First, to be appointed by the Chair, and as to the case of the City of New-York, the said committee shall have power to report any plan they think best concerning the organization in that City. Adopted.

The Chair announced the following Committees:

Hon. E. H. ROBERTS, of Oneida, moved that the Chair appoint a committee on resolutions.

WILLIAM P. ESTERBROOK moved to lay the resolution on the table for the present. Agreed to.

Mr. RAMSEY, of Albany, moved for a Committee to name a permanent organization. Agreed to.

The Convention then took a recess until 4 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention was called to order at 4:10 o'clock, P. M. Gen. SHARPE stated that the committee on contested seats was not ready to report, and moved that when the Convention adjourn it adjourn to meet again at 7 o'clock; lost. J. W. SIMONTON, of Richmond, moved that the Convention take a recess till 6 o'clock P. M., but withdrew the motion to allow E. H. ROBERTS, of Oneida, to move the appointment of a Committee on Resolutions, which he did, and the motion was carried. The Chair then announced the following:

Committee on Resolutions—B. D. Silliman of Kings, G. Hilton Scribner of Westchester, Geo. Dawson of Albany, Peter S. Hoes of Columbia, Calvin T. Hurlburd of St. Lawrence, Geo. Curtis of Schenectady, Ellis H. Roberts of Oneida, C. I. Merriam of Lewis, B. R. Johnson of Broome, E. T. Brooks of Chemung, D. D. S. Brown of Monroe, Henry Sherwood of Steuben, T. C. Mr. RAMSEY moved that the State Committee be elected in the usual manner, a member to be taken from each Congressional district. Adopted.

Mr. J. W. SIMONTON renewed his motion for a recess till 6 P. M. Lost.

The Convention then took a recess till 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The Convention was called to order at 7½ P. M.

CONTESTED SEATS.

Judge FULLERTON, from the Committee on Contested Seats, reported that JOHN QUISARD and JOHN LEARY are the regular delegates from the Second District of Kings; also, MONEY and JOHNSON, from the Third District; also, WILLIAMS, ELLERY and OAKEY, from the Ninth District. The minority of the Committee reported in favor of the Bliss delegation. Mr. E. D. WEBSTER took the ground that the Convention could not afford to perpetrate such an outrage upon the Republicans of Kings, as would be the admission of the Williams delegation. Mr. A. J. WILLIAMS defended the regularity of the delegation, rehearsing the manner in which it was elected. A motion was made to substitute the minority for the majority report on the Ninth District, which, after much confusion, was adopted. It being stated that this vote was carried under a misapprehension, a reconsideration was moved and carried. The question was then taken again on the motion to substitute the minority for the majority report, and it was negatived by 116 to 202. The majority report on the Ninth District of Kings County was then adopted. The Committee further reported in favor of the Roscoe Conkling delegation from the First District of Oneida County. [Applause.] E. J. MILLER said that after what had occurred here today nothing else could be expected. Mr. SACKETT, of Saratoga, explained the causes for the action of the Committee. He said that after hearing all the facts they were unanimous in making the report. The report was adopted.

THE NEW-YORK DELEGATIONS.

The Committee further reported on the contesting delegations from New-York as follows:

Resolved, That the action of the State Committee in reforming the organization of the party in the City of New-York is hereby approved and confirmed, and the organization established by the said Committee is declared henceforth the regular and only Republican organization in the said City.

Resolved, That the State Committee is directed to perfect and consolidate said organization, so that all Republicans resident in the City of New-York shall be fairly represented therein.

Resolved, That, for the purpose of promoting harmony in the Republican Party, both delegations from New-York presenting credentials are hereby admitted to seats in the Convention, with the right to cast half of one vote.

Resolved, That each of said delegations from New-York shall present three Republicans as members of the State Committee; but no person shall be presented who holds office under the present State or municipal Governments, or receives profit or emolument therefrom.

When the words "in order to promote harmony in the Republican Party" were read, there were cries of "Oh! Oh!" and laughter from all parts of the house. The minority of the Committee reported a resolution in favor of the admission of the delegation headed by HORACE GREELEY. Nine cheers were given, and there was great enthusiasm. Cheers were also given for Gen. GRANT and Senators CONKLING and FENTON. RUFUS ANDREWS rose to speak amid great confusion. When he asked if he was to be gagged here and prevented from being heard at the dictation of a United States Senator, Senator CONKLING rose and asked the unanimous consent that the gentleman from New-York be heard, which was greeted with cheers and great applause. The Chair putting the question, it was carried.

Mr. ANDREWS then proceeded to detail the history of the conflict between the contesting delegations from New-York for years back. He warned the Convention that if men were ignored or excluded here, their power would be felt. The action here raises the question whether the Republican Party shall live? He proceeded at some length in this strain. He wanted the question put distinctly to this Convention, whether the action of this State Committee was legitimate and proper?

Mr. C. S. SPENCER followed, stating the other side of the case.

Gen. COCHRANE next spoke of the honor and glory achieved by the Republican Party, and of how he venerated it, with a view of stripping the question raised here of some of its rancor. He contended that the State Committee had no authority to do the work it had done. That work belonged exclusively to the Convention, which was the creator and the Committee the creature. He concluded by warning the Convention against the action recommended by the majority of the Committee.

Mr. PARKER, of Cayuga, spoke on behalf of the rural districts, showing that, owing to repeated dissensions in New-York, the Convention had found it necessary to interfere, and it had justly and necessarily interfered.

Mr. DWIGHT, of New-York, was the next speaker. He held that this question was properly before this Convention. The Committee had not, in fact, acted definitely in the matter, but it had acted subject to the approval of this Convention, the great legislative body of the party. He said there had been great robberies perpetrated in this State, and he did not want any member of a Republican General Committee put on the stand as a witness. He did not want to see this. He wanted the question settled here and now, and settled with candor and magnanimity on both sides.

HAMILTON WARD moved, as a substitute for the report, that both delegations be admitted with a half-vote to each delegation, and that the State Committee be directed to perfect the organization of the party in that city.

Mr. RAMSEY, of Albany, stated that the action taken by the subcommittee in perfecting the organization in New-York was for the purpose of securing an organization in that City which would not be under the control of Tammany Hall.

Mr. TOUSEY, of New-York, said the proposition made by Mr. WARD met the approval of his delegation. [Applause.]

Mr. DUGANNE spoke at some length, saying he had years ago proposed the very action now taken by the State Committee. He had no objection to Republicans holding places under the Tammany authorities, but he wanted them to take an humble position in the Republican Party, not a leading one. He said he wanted to accept Mr. WARD's substitute, provided they would append a prohibition against any Republican holding office under Tammany and a position at the same time in the organization of the Republican Party in New-York. [A Voice—"We'll do that."]

Mr. TWOMBLY sustained Mr. WARD's proposition at some length.

SPEECH OF SENATOR CONKLING.

Mr. ROSCOE CONKLING said: I wish for one moment to congratulate this Convention that when a gentleman who holds one side of this proposition, although he be not a member here, addresses this Convention, he is respectfully heard as my friend, Mr. TWOMLEY, has been, not only by the members of this body, but also by this great concourse which witnesses its proceedings; when he has been heard patiently, I crave for a moment the indulgence of the Convention myself, that I may see whether or not he might, in the fear that, according to the theory of every earnest Republican, we shall shipwreck this question if we are caught by the substitute proposed by my friend from Alleghany. Mr. President, let me call your attention for one moment to some events in the presence of which we stand. A horde of ballot-box stuffers, pirates and robbers, have clutched by the throat the greatest City in the western world. A horde of pirates, whose firm name is Tammany Hall, and I stand here to say that beyond presenting in its own organization the most hideous spectacle in modern history, it has debauched, tampered with and to a large extent controls that glorious organization which is the brightest in the annals of political parties. [Applause.] Now, Mr. President, does any member of this Convention who differs with me say that I go too far when I affirm, as the New-York Tribune has affirmed in repeated instances, of which I have extracts before me, that WILLIAM M. TWEED and OAKEY HALL, and the men who have disgraced us before the civilized world, have tampered with, controlled and debauched the Republican organization in the City of New-York? [Tremendous cheering.] I think no member of this Convention denies that proposition; if so let him speak, for him have I offended.

SEVERAL VOICES—I deny it.

Oh, Mr. President, I am thankful for that denial, [laughter,] for I know that the logic of these gentlemen would compel them to deny it. [Loud and prolonged cheering.] Mr. President, when I hear any man, although he may be a friend of mine, deny that allegation, my answer to him is, "It is too late, it is too late." [Laughter.] The fact has passed into the judgment of recorded history. [Voices—"How about MURPHY?"] It is as a city set on a hill, as plainly to be seen as a crow hung in a corn-field. [Laughter.] I think but few men can be found to deny that the time has come when this great Republican Party should be made one in the City of New-York, and that one should be exempted from and guarded against the encroachments of Tammany Hall. [Applause.] Assuming that, what are we to do? I beg, my friends, to say to you that I am not going to be tempted into making a speech. I rose for a mere suggestion, and I shall take my seat in a moment. [Voices—Go on.] No, go on. I know how late it is, and how anxious all are to get away, and I rise now for the purpose of showing this Convention that unless it wishes to flitter away all that has been done, they will not consent to a substitute proposed by my friend from Alleghany. The member from Alleghany said his substitute had been amended providing that no one shall be admitted to the nomination who is connected with Tammany or subject to its influence.

Mr. CONKLING resumed: Why, Mr. President, I wonder at that proviso because it has just been denied by the members of this concourse. [Laughter.] I hope, in the language of lawyers, it will not be regarded as surplusage. If the elections, Mr. President, were only six months off it would be bad enough. But do members remember that only a month will pass before we are to meet Tammany and the Democracy in a grapple for the supremacy and that in that grapple that Tammany is to go down. [Applause.] If they do, is it supposed that when men as able as JACKSON S. SCHULTZ, WM. ORTON, and others, who aided them, have given millions to this work, that in four weeks we are to do it all over again de novo? Everybody must see that we must not attempt to go through this campaign with a divided organization, but that we should haste to close up the ranks and form one solid body, welded together to meet the common foe. [Applause.] I would like to read from this record, which has been alluded to with so much eloquence to-night—I mean the New-York Tribune, which has devoted so many weeks to healing the wounds, settling the differences and harmonizing the feelings of the factions of the Republican Party. I read, Mr. Chairman, from the Tribune of to-day to show that I was not mistaken when I supposed I had been contributing, in my humble way, by going far in advance of most of those who thought with me in recommending magnanimity and conciliation, to show that I was right when I supposed that this proposition would be regarded not only as liberal, but would also be accepted with feelings very different from those which we have experienced at the hands of our friends. [The speaker here read from the Tribune an extract stating that, "It seems probable that the Convention will indorse the action of the State Committee, and authorize the latter to take any measure, necessary to perfect a reorganization, and pending these questions will admit both the regular and Custom-house delegations on the floor."] What, Sir, is the comment on that? Is it the comment made by the honorable gentleman from New-York, who spoke here by the indulgence of this Convention, and who put an imputation upon me which was groundless, and alluded to the action of this Committee as infamous. The speaker read further from the same article, and continued: Now, Mr. President, speaking in the interest of conciliation and harmony, I do beseech my neighbors and friends of the same household to accept that statement in this paper, which unmistakably shows that the editor of that paper deemed this a liberal, honorable and fair adjustment. I beg them to accept it. Let us shake hands together. Let us bury all animosities and disappointments in a common grave, and let it be my privilege to second the motion which will be made to put the gentleman from St. Lawrence, now in my eye, upon some conspicuous place on the ticket. We are to nominate the member from St. Lawrence alluded to.

Mr. BLANK said we don't ask that.

Mr. CONKLING—My honorable friend will find if St. Lawrence don't ask it, nobody will fling it before the unwilling feet of St. Lawrence. [Laughter.] I beg all to observe that I intended nothing but a compliment to the honorable gentleman when I mentioned; but it will give me pleasure to second the nomination of other gentlemen who have not agreed with me to conspicuous positions on the ticket, and I shall strive, while my health holds out, to heal our differences, and appeal to all Republicans to give me in this their enthusiastic support. [Applause.] All I ask is that when this Committee has matured a plan which will purify and unify the Republican organization in the City of New-York, we shall take it in fairness. Put these two delegations precisely on a par, and then separate, knowing that when the National Convention meets we shall not send double delegations, in order to parade our dissensions there. [Applause.] Before taking my seat, I beg to say that I have spoken with the utmost kindness of every member of this organization. There is no gentleman who will not stand shoulder to shoulder with the party in the execution of its purposes. [Applause.] I was instructed by my constituents before coming here to vote in favor of the reorganization of the party of the City of New-York, and I supposed I had gone to the very edge in the council when I advised and requested many a cherished friend who did me the favor to consult with me, to provide for the admission of both sets of delegates, seeking nothing except that when this Convention was over this split would be at an end, and all parts of the Republican organization would come in on the same terms, so that everybody entering the organization now could come in on what they used to call in Pennsylvania in the oil regions, "coming in on the ground floor." If that were done, I thought no complaint would be made. If I have erred, I have erred in the interest of harmony and magnanimity. I ask that a fair and square vote be taken on the two questions of the Committee, to the end that we may complete our organizations just as well as they have been running along for the last three months.

HAMILTON WARD declared that the rejection of his substitute would seal the fate of the Republican Party and the doom of ROSCOE CONKLING. As to the Tribune indorsing the action of the Convention, he did not read it so. He then cited the NEW-YORK TIMES, a paper which the gentleman from Oneida indorsed, which did approve of the proposed action here. He then referred to his substitute, and claimed that it embodied the views of both wings of the party in New-York. He concluded by moving the previous question, which was ordered at 11 o'clock, and then the roll was called, when the vote stood on the adoption of the substitute, yeas 154, nays 194. The majority report was then adopted, admitting both delegations from New-York, and making provision for perfecting a single organization in New-York, as stated in the report. Mr. TOUSEY stated that his delegation would not accept these terms, and would retire from the Convention. This announcement, made at 11½ P. M., was received with repeated cheers. Dr. SHERMAN, of St. Lawrence, announced that delegates from the First District of St. Lawrence would also withdraw from the Convention.

Both lists of delegates from New-York were then read.

Gen. SHARPE said that one delegation had loyally responded, the other, having left the hall, he moved the one remaining be allowed to cast a full vote.

Mr. SPENCER said that delegation had left in anger. He hoped the motion would be withdrawn, as they may reconsider their action.

Mr. SHARPE withdrew his motion, and the Convention adjourned until 9 A. M. to-morrow.

Meeting of the State Joint Temperance Committee at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Committee of Conference appointed by the State Temperance Society, the Grand Lodge of Good Templars, and the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Eastern New-York, held a joint session at the new Temperance Hotel at 8 o'clock this evening. H. S. MCCOLLUM was appointed Chairman and Rev. S. B. DICKINSON Secretary. An invitation was extended to all the friends of local prohibition who were present to take part in the deliberations of the Committee. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That a subcommittee of three be appointed to ask the Republican State Convention which is to assemble today, to reindorse local prohibition as advocated by the organization represented on the Joint Committee consisting of Hon. JOHN O'DONNELL, Rev. S. B. DICKINSON and Dr. J. C. GALLUP.

Resolved, That it is the imperative duty of every temperance elector to support and vote only for such candidates for Senators and Assemblymen as are known to favor local prohibition.

Resolved, That all temperance organizations, of whatever name, are earnestly requested to co-operate in a united effort to secure the enactment of the proposed law.

After considerable informal discussion in reference to future meetings, the form of a law and plans for circulating petitions to the Legislature, the Joint Committee took a recess until 5½ o'clock this afternoon.

The Republican Editors' Convention.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Republican State Editorial Convention met in the Globe Hotel this morning, and effected a permanent organization by electing Hon. J. H. SELKREG, of Tompkins County, President; S. C. CLEVELAND, of Yates, and A. SANFORD, of Oneida, Vice-Presidents, and C. B. THOMPSON, of Genesee, Secretary and Treasurer. An Executive Committee of four from each judicial district was appointed. A resolution was adopted recommending to the State Republican Convention the adoption of a basis of two delegates from each Assembly district in calling future Conventions.

Exciting Session of the State Convention at Worcester—Butler's Struggle for the Nomination and Inglorious Defeat.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 27.—The Republican State Convention in session here today is, to say the least, an extraordinary and exciting gathering, and as unlike former Conventions as possible. This is solely owing to Gen. BUTLER, who continues to conduct himself in a manner diametrically opposed to established customs, and to plot and plan for the Governorship without regard to principle. Nearly all of the delegates, over 1,100 in number, were here last evening, and spent pretty much all of the night and all of this forenoon in the various head-quarters of the various candidates for the Governorship, discussing the situation and lobbying, while the managers of the Anti-Butler cliques were endeavoring to unite their forces and arrange some practicable programme. A half hour before the time appointed for the opening of the Convention, the delegates and others who had managed to get tickets of admission were in the hall, and filled it entirely. According to the decision of the State Central Committee, the delegates whose places are contested took seats in the galleries, there to await the action of the Convention in their cases. They made a formidable crowd, a dozen or fifteen towns and wards of cities having sent double delegations. Conspicuous among the regular delegates were Congressman DAWES, Judge HOAR, Ex-Gov. BULLOCK, and the poet JOHN G. WHITTIER; and among the few non-voters, two prominent women suffragists, who seem anxious to be seen, though they cannot be heard.

Gen. BUTLER made a most imposing entré just before the Convention was called to order. He came into the hall by the private way, and marched, as the crowd fell back, to the edge of the platform. At the moment his peculiar head and extraordinary face appeared his men among the delegates raised a most terrific yell of admiration, which the General acknowledged by walking boldly upon the platform and bowing with his hand on his hidden heart. He then pushed and elbowed his way through the crowd, creating great confusion and a good deal of nagging and hissing, which the doughty warrior seemed to relish and enjoy exceedingly.

Dr. LORING, as Chairman of the State Central Committee, called the Convention to order, and being at once elected temporary Chairman, made a short speech, in which he facetiously returned his profound thanks for the "temporary and fleeting honor" conferred upon him, and took the opportunity to express the most loyal Republican sentiments—which appeared to be accepted as a personal definition of position in view of his candidacy for the Gubernatorial nomination—and to call the attention of the delegates to their present duty, reminding them that they were here to defend the republican honor of the Commonwealth, "which is the height of Republicanism throughout this Union, and the guiding star of Republican men and Republicanism the world over." He also predicted the renomination and re-election of President GRANT, and declared that if it should continue to be his duty to serve in the ranks "his gun would be at his shoulder, and all personal feelings would be set aside."

A few of the committees were appointed, Ex-Attorney-General HOAR being made Chairman of the Committee on Credentials, when Gen. BUTLER attempted to test his strength in the Convention by moving "that the galleries be thrown open to the people, to whom they rightly belong, that they may observe the action of their delegates." This was carried by a vote of 524 to 437, and the fact being announced created another burst of crackling Butler yells. Then followed a duel between Congressman DAWES and Gen. BUTLER. The former presented a resolution giving those of the contested delegates provided with the certificate of the town and city authorities, authority to sit in the Convention, and vote until their cases are decided by the Credential Committee. Gen. BUTLER, stepping on to the platform by the side of Dr. LORING, denounced the resolution as unprecedented and unfair, insinuating that it was intended to tie the hands of voters and to control the action of the Convention, and then proceeded to deliver portions of his campaign speech which he has been delivering throughout the State, making personal allusions, distorting facts, misrepresenting men and things, and denouncing the newspapers and Republican leaders. Two or three of his misstatements were nailed as untrue on the spot, to his evident discomfiture, but he got out of his dilemma by saying that he got his information from the lying newspapers. He denounced what he termed the intention of the managers of the Convention to go into an inquisition. It would not do, he said, to examine too closely into the records of the delegates present; and to lampoon Dr. LORING, at his side, leering upon him, he said, "Would it, Doctor?" which remark was received with cheers. Congressman DAWES answered briefly but caustically so far as BUTLER was concerned. Several delegates followed with statements showing the corrupt caucus management of the Butler men, and one or two of BUTLER's fuglemen charged the Anti-Butlerites with fraud and corruption. These were made in the midst of great confusion, BUTLER, in the meanwhile, exhibiting himself among the officers of the Convention upon the platform. Finally the resolution was referred to the Committee on Credentials.

The Convention was then permanently organized by the choice of Congressman HOAR as Chairman, and Ex-Gov. BULLOCK at the head of a large number of Vice-Presidents. Mr. HOAR's address, on taking the chair, was brief, and, on the whole, of little significance. The most pointed remark was in the opening, when he said the Convention had met to present to the State and the country, in its platform, candidates and conduct, a definition and a pattern of Republicanism; whosoever is, in its judgment, the most exalted in character and in ability, of integrity the most unsullied, of judgment and opinion the soundest, is to be commanded to service as the champion and standard-bearer of the party, and as an example of the best result and best fruits of Massachusetts Republicanism. The remainder of the address was a presentation of the results of GRANT's Administration and a discussion of the labor question, which he Literature of the War—Napoleon's Responsibility—MeMahon's Bravery—A Singular Visit—Doings of the Assembly—The Case of Rossel—M. Favre's Troubles—Miscellaneous News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Tuesday, Sept. 12, 1871.

Yesterday evening, when passing through the Passage Youffroy to the Boulevard Montmartre, my attention was attracted by some new books placed upon the show-stand of a bookseller's stall, and I paused to glance at their titles. Without a single exception, all were upon the war, the siege of Paris, the war in the provinces, the siege of this place or that place, the truth about Metz in half a dozen different volumes, and as many different truths, two new books on GARIBALDI'S army, one for and the other against it, and a host of personal accounts written by Generals and army officers to exculpate themselves and to blame everybody else. Upon this one stand was a mass of works upon the war twenty long and six deep, making, with the scattering volumes around the case, about 130 books of this kind which have appeared since the army entered Paris. Three books, to my own knowledge, upon the Siege of Paris were not in this collection, and it is very probable that this one dealer did not have all of the works which have been issued. But beyond this there were a number of pamphlets, or brochures, which brought the number up to 150 volumes.

NAPOLEON'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Glancing at some five and twenty taken up at random, I found enough to sustain the remark of a friend, that nine out of every ten made the Emperor responsible for the commands given to the army at and before Sedan, as well as for all the disasters before and since that period. In each volume one finds the special claim that the author is writing history, and dealing with historical facts. Well, a few days ago Marshal MCMAHON was called before the Committee examining the acts of the war, and there asserted, in the most formal manner, that the Emperor had no command; that he gave no orders; that he interfered with no plan; that neither he nor his Ministers attempted to control the operations of the army in the field, except by advice, which could be followed or not; and that he, MCMAHON, DUC DE MAGENTA, and Marshal of France, was entirely and solely responsible for the march from Chalons and the disasters which followed. He not only exonerated the Emperor and showed the falsity of the assertions referred to, but he claimed that the Emperor was always willing to be advised with reference to himself, and had the utmost confidence in his, MCMAHON'S, judgment.

M'MAHON'S BRAVERY.

Since the beginning of the war there has been no act which equals in bravery this act of Marshal MCMAHON. To make such a declaration in the face of the thousand and one statements to the contrary, and in the face of popular sentiment, required a moral courage of the highest order. The blow thus given to the officers who hastily rushed into print to justify themselves by throwing the blame upon their sovereign or upon some brother officers, was a severe but well merited one. Gen. WIMPFFEN and the rest now hang their heads for shame, and try to defend themselves by abusing MCMAHON, or by raising a feeling against him by calling him an Imperialist. But the Marshal is too strong in the hearts of his soldiers; and, besides, it was not a question of party but of historical facts, sworn to upon honor before the world. Gen. DUCROT just managed to "save his bacon." His book had been begged for by a number of publishers, and was finally pledged at a heavy price. Everything was prepared for its speedy appearance, and it would have been ready for issue in a few days' time, but for this new event. Gen. DUCROT had criticised rather severely the Marshal's operations, of course, in the interest of TROCHU, but after MCMAHON had so generously taken all responsibility upon himself, after he had denied all of DUCROT'S remarks upon the conduct of the Emperor, and, above all, after the unjust and unworthy attacks of Gen. WIMPFFEN, Gen. DUCROT did not hesitate a moment in stopping the work and in sending for his manuscript. The book will have to be completely rewritten, and it is not at all probable that it will be issued before the report of the Commission has been made public. Marshal MCMAHON gave a strong denial that the voyage of M. ROUHER to Reims had anything to do with the command of his army, which statement refers to the repeated charges of M. JULES FAVRE and the men of the 4th of September. It is safe to say that 150 authors now regret that they entered the domain of history without any real knowledge of the facts. The haste displayed by these officers was certainly scandalous, and WIMPFFEN is about the worst of all, because no one ever thought of blaming him. It was a great misfortune that he was compelled, at the eleventh hour, to sign the surrender of Sedan, but that is no reason for falsifying history, or for making statements which are not sustained by facts.

A SILENT PRESS.

As strange as it may appear, the Paris Press makes no comment upon this important testimony; nor can we wonder so much, after all, for it is a blow to these unreflecting journalists as well. By turning to the files of the TIMES it will be seen that I said, in September last, just what Marshal MCMAHON says today. It was evident "with half an eye." And I said further that the real fault was not in the plan, which was good enough, it may be, but in the army itself. MCMAHON had a given time in which to do a given work, but when the time expired he had not begun, simply because he could march his army but ten miles a day. Prince FRITZ came rushing through the Ardennes at the rate of twenty miles a day, and fell upon the flank of the French army jammed in close upon the Luxembourg border. There was no help for it then, for Sedan was an unavoidable trap. Could MCMAHON have marched his army even eighteen miles a day, we should have seen a very different termination to that plan. Nor do the Paris journals comment upon the testimony of M. CLEMENT DUVERNOIS, who showed, figures in hand, that he provisioned Paris, and who proved, documents in hand, that a treaty did exist with Russia to prevent the loss of French territory. But this is not all. Prince NAPOLEON gives us another letter, in which he nails other calumnies, and in which he proves the statements of M. JULES FAVRE to be errors on the part of the Ex-Minister.

A CURIOUS SUIT.

Speaking of the war brings to mind a curious incident and a singular trial soon to come before the tribunal of this city. When the citizens of Paris were crying A tue tête, à Berlin! the Constitutionnel made a great deal of capital out of the fact that two of its editors had shouldered their Chassepots and gone off to the war. "We show that we can fight as well as talk," said that journal, arrogantly, and it called upon its opponents to shoulder the musket also, or else keep silence afterward. At the same time it patted its two representatives on the back and publicly announced that their pay would be continued, the same as if they were in the office, to the end of the war. "Let those who cry at us do likewise or keep silence thereafter," it again cried triumphantly. I have already spoken of PAUL DE CASSAGNAC and ROBERT MITCHEL in their Zouave uniforms, and the excitement they created here as well as in the army. Both were taken prisoners, both remained to the end of the war in a German prison because they refused to give their parole not to escape. On their return to Paris, out of funds, they very naturally called upon their former proprietor, M. GIBIAT refused to pay the money. Suits were entered for the sum of six thousand francs, but, being pressed for money, CASSAGNAC compromised for one-half and withdrew the suit. MITCHEL still claims the entire sum according to express agreement, and the affair is to be decided in a day or two. Another suit has been instituted against M. GIBIAT by M. GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC. Every resident of Paris must have remarked that quite a number of papers are precisely the same in type and matter, in everything, in fact, except in form and name. The Pays and the Constitutionnel were the same in all except the leading articles. The same type, matter and press were used in their production. But separate editors were required, and at a meeting of the stockholders of these journals, M. GRANIER DE CASSAGNAC was elected editor of the Pays. The larger portion of the stock being in the hands of M. GIRAT, and the latter having quarreled with the CASSAGNACS over the pay of PAUL, M. GRANIER was told that his services were no longer required. The latter claims that he was elected to fill the post up to the 31st of October, 1873, and intends to do so unless forbidden by a Court of law.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The vacation of the Assembly has not yet been settled upon, so far as its beginning is concerned, but it is agreed that the session shall be resumed on the 4th of December. M. THIERS is exceedingly anxious to get the Chamber out of his way, and he is using all of his influence to that end. There is no doubt that there is constant danger of difficulties arising, so long as the sessions continue, and the debate upon the proposition of M. RAVINEL came near causing another eruption. The discussion was exceedingly bitter, and the members of the Left did not hesitate to say that if the Assembly voted the decapitalization of Paris there would be another insurrection. I do not doubt it. While the removal of the capital to some interior town would be the best guarantee for the security of the Chamber and the Government, while it would be, perhaps, a good thing for France, it would be the utter ruin of Paris. The statement that its stores of art would always attract the same number of visitors is scarcely correct, for Versailles was full of art riches, yet it was formerly one of the dullest towns in France. The danger of removing the capital at this time is very evident, and it was a piece of wisdom, therefore, on the part of the Assembly to leave things as they are for the present. M. THIERS is no longer anxious to enter Paris; in fact, he seems to have but one source of anxiety at this time—his desire to get the Assembly out of his way. It is supposed that the vacation will begin as soon as M. POUYER-QUERTIER'S financial measures are disposed of, but it must be confessed that there is still an amount of serious work to be done. To complete the present year France must have 3,190,000,000 francs—a sum so enormous that, for all her great resources, I do not see how the country is to raise it. The difficulty is greatly increased by M. THIERS' refusal to sanction an income tax. Financial difficulties are again beginning, and before long another loan must be put upon the market. It remains to be seen whether the ROTHSCHILDS will take hold of it as cheerfully as they did the first.

THE CASE OF ROSSEL.

The condemnation of ROSSEL has given great pain to the public, for he is a man of merit, of honor and of courage, qualities rare at this time. I do not see how the Court could have rendered any other judgment; yet it is to be hoped that mercy will be used in the case of this young man. It is too hard to place him upon the same footing with a vulgar assassin like FERRE, or with a crazy man like LULLIER. All the witnesses who were brought upon the stand spoke with love, respect and esteem of the character of ROSSEL. The father, mother and sister of the condemned man were in Court when the sentence was read, and not one of them shed a tear. The two women dropped their vails, and the stern old Puritan, with compressed lips and head erect, led his wife and daughter from the room. The condemnation of CAVALIER has brought out a curious fact regarding M. GAMBETTA. A friend came to him to say that he must testify in his favor or PIPE-EN-BOIS would be condemned. "PIPE-EN-BOIS," said the ex-dictator, "PIPE-EN-BOIS, who the devil can that be?—connais pas ces gens-la!" Twice afterward he was begged to give evidence in favor of his former friend and secretary, but twice refused. It can be said, however, that the testimony of M. GAMBETTA, just now, would not go far in favor of any man.

M. FAVRE'S TROUBLES.

The declarations, or the confessions of M. JULES FAVRE are still the topic of conversation, and the general wonder is that the Ex-Minister was so stupid as to enter into details which had nothing to do with the real point at issue, or which did not affect the question whether, in saying that M. FAVRE ordered the robbery of his house, M. LALUYE was or was not guilty of slander. There was no necessity whatever for the confession made by M. FAVRE. But, having made it, his public career is ended in France, and but few of his friends try to prevent his total retirement. The incident has brought out several interesting facts. Despite the many charges against the morality of the Empire, it is certain that Mme. EUJENIE DE MONTIHO, or the Empress, as you will, tried to keep her courtiers correct in their private as well as their public life. The Imperialists raise their heads higher than ever over the letters recently found in the Imperial correspondence (suppressed by M. FAVRE'S commission,) showing the Empress' solicitude for the morals of the people who had the entrance to the Tuileries. Whenever appointments were to be made, a close inquiry was made into the habits of the candidate, and he was required to give a certain promise before accepting the position offered him, or which he solicited. One lot of letters refers to the appointment of a young Minister who was living as M. FAVRE confessed he had been living for twenty years. The Empress sent for the young man and told him he must "regulate" his life before accepting the portfolio, or he could not be received at the palace. It is needless to say that he regulated. A number of similar cases are found in connection with the promotions or appointments in the Legion of Honor. A great many men "regulated" under the lady sovereign's command, or through the prospect of a red ribbon, and it became a standing joke when one was seen with a fresh ribbon to ask if he had "regulated" before accepting the honor. At the time M. FAVRE was bitterly attacking the immorality and corruption of the Imperial Court, this was the spirit which prevailed in that elevated household.

A FETE AT ST. CLOUD.

On Sunday I went to the fête of St. Cloud in company with thousands of Parisians, and had an opportunity of seeing the damage caused by the war. The beautiful palace in ruins and one half the town destroyed was not a pleasant picture to contemplate. It is sad to think, too, that the French are alone responsible for the destruction of the chateau, with its treasures of art, and that the shells of Mont Valerian did most of the damage in the town. The streets of St. Cloud were densely crowded all day long, and the public carriers did a thriving business throughout the day and night. The highway was thronged with pedestrians who could find no means of conveyance. In ordinary times the fête of St. Cloud has a wide celebrity, and is very popular with the Parisians.

PRESS PROSECUTIONS.

The suit entered against the Goulois, by the Government, for "publishing false news, with malice, and for the purpose of disturbing the public peace," was decided yesterday. This refers to the news regarding the excitement at Lyons—news given by the Patrie and the Paris Journal as well, both of which are being pursued. M. TARBE, the director, was found guilty of publishing false news, but with extenuating circumstances. He was not found guilty of malice, or of an intention to disturb the public order, and in consequence he was condemned to pay a fine of five hundred francs, and costs of Court.

HEALTH OF PARIS.

The rumor that we have the cholera in Paris comes to us from America and from England. This week there were two cases of cholera and forty of cholerine, but it is pretty sure that the Asiatic cholera has not yet reached us.

ASHBY.

How the Armory Frauds were Accomplished.

Developments are rapidly being made in regard to the manner in which the bills of the Ring contractors for work on the armories were made so outrageously large. In the case of the old Thirty-seventh Regiment Armory, on the block bounded by Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth-streets and Broadway and Sixth-avenue, information has just been received from Mr. JOHN FULLAGAR, of Cincinnati, showing how jobs were manipulated while that regiment was in existence. Mr. FULLAGER was formerly an officer of the regiment, and belonged to the Armory Committee. His evidence can be relied upon. He states that the first fraudulent offer was made when ASHLEY was Colonel of the Thirty-seventh, and that somebody in the Ring was paid $1,500 in order to get the corner room on Thirty-fifth-street fitted up. Subsequently the officers wanted an appropriation of $5,000 to fix up the building, and were told that they could get it if they would sign a bill for $15,000. On another occasion Mr. FULLAGAR desired to get the money for a bill of his own for $329, and was told that he would receive the amount from the City if he would sign for $4,000. His bill has never been paid, as he refused to enter into any disreputable arrangement. It is so long since these transactions occurred that Mr. FULLAGAR is unable to recollect names and dates.

ANOTHER COURT-HOUSE JOB.

The Jefferson Market Building Swindle—History of the New Enterprise as Far as it Has Gone.

It is easier to smash a crocodile in the egg than when the reptile has attained its full growth. The Jefferson Market Court-house is at present in the embryonic stage of jobbery, and a timely exposure of the machinery prepared for swindling the public may possibly effect a saving of some millions. When in April of last year a bill for a new structure for Judicial purposes on the triangular plot of ground between Sixth and Greenwich avenues and Tenth-street was proposed in the Legislature at Albany it excited no suspicion, and passed without opposition or comment, for the tumble-down Market, the ricketty Jail, and the inconvenient and shabby Court rooms which occupied the ground in question had long been considered an eye-sore to the City. There was a part of the site on the corner of Sixth avenue extending back to Tenth-street which had been leased by the City for twenty-one years, and stores had been erected on this section. The lease and the buildings had after various changes become vested in the hands of AMASA J. PARKER and JAMES KILL, both residents of Albany, and a preliminary grant of $100,000 was made to cover the purchase of these claims, and the necessary expenses. The Mayor appointed THOMAS CANARY and Justices COX and SHANDLEY Commissioners of the building, and they settled with the Albany claimants. But there were sub-leases on the property held by the proprietors of various stores who did business in the vicinity of the market. The sub-lessees—Bernard Morris, Richard Tayton, Carl Moessner, Joseph Cohen, James F. Lawler, L. Fenerbach, Julius Bergmann and T. MacDonald—were interviewed by the Commissioners, and privately offered $200 apiece for their leases. This they refused, having had a little talk together beforehand, and not being taken by surprise, for the thing had leaked out somehow. A few days afterward one of the Commissioners saw them all, and told them in the most friendly way that their leases were worth nothing, but the Commissioners would give $400 apiece, as they did not wish to be unpopular. This was refused, and after much arguing the friendly Commissioner went away, and the sub-tenants placed themselves in the hands of legal advisers, and petitioned the Supreme Court for reasonable compensation. The Commissioners then prayed for assistance in the shape of a Board of Appraisers, and this was granted, the Mayor appointing JAMES H. COLEMAN, MORGAN JONES and MICHAEL NORTON. Such being the arrangements, it might be supposed that the holders of the sub-leases would have been squeezed in the Tammany Courts; but it is a fact that they received not only fair compensation, but even such a compensation as is dispassionate men might seem exorbitant. JOSEPH COHEN received for his lease of a year, one half of which had expired, the munificent sum of $3,500. When questioned as to the genuine character of the award, he declared to a reporter of the TIMES that he received the money in greenbacks, and that he was neither asked nor expected to share it with any one. In the total absence of evidence to the contrary, Mr. COHEN'S statement must be accepted. Yet when it is remembered that the Commissioners commenced by offering these very men $400 a piece, it must be admitted that the story is at best a fishy one. It may also be remarked that the personal character of the Commissioners themselves will not by any means make Mr. COHEN'S account more credible. However that may be, it is certain that by the time that the Albany lease-holders and the New-York sub-tenants had been satisfied, and after the plans of Mr. PRAGUE, the architect, had been paid for, there was nothing left of the original grant of $100,000. A new grant of $350,000 was therefore procured by the Department of Public Works, the money to be raised by an issue of bonds through the Controller's office. The Commissioners were now ready to begin. The proper, natural and honest course would have been to make contracts with responsible builders, carpenters and masons, to do the work and find the materials according to the specifications furnished by Mr. PRAGUE, the architect. This is exactly what they did not do. Under the pretext that the Controller had not issued the bonds in consequence of heavy calls upon the City Treasury from other Departments, notably from the Public Parks, under the extravagant expenditure of Judge HILTON, they decided not to make any contracts, but to form some arrangement with a builder capitalist who would advance the necessary money, and wait for his pay until he could get it. Mr. ANDREW J. GARVEY, the plasterer, was the honest capitalist whom the worthy Commissioners selected. Mr. PRAGUE, the architect, was foolish enough to make some faint remonstrances and to assume in a timid half-and-half way a defiant attitude. For this he was punished by the rejection of the plans which he had prepared with great care. These were very superior in many respects and delighted the Ring by their exceeding costliness. They provided for a really superb set of market halls on the ground floor; civil and criminal Court-room on the second floor; an armory on the third and last floor, and a superb jail in one large corner. The basement would have been occupied by prison laundry, cooking rooms, &c. The worthy Mr. DILLEN, a creature of TWEED'S, opposed it with all his eloquence, and as he was known to express the sentiments of the "Boss," the plans were rejected, the Mayor especially condemning them on the ground that as the City was selling its markets, to build a new one would be the height of folly. Mr. PRAGUE, however, was ordered to prepare new ones without a market, and instead of occupying the whole of the triangle, to build on not quite half of it, or to be more explicit, on the entire front of Tenth-street, with 160 feet on Sixth-avenue, and 77 feet on Greenwich-avenue. He went to work manfully, and by the Fall of last year was again ready for the encounter. This time the plans were found correct, and the men were set to work to dig the foundation. But they could only dig in part of the site, as the prisoners still remained in jail, and no suitable place could be found for them.

The Court-rooms were removed to No. 101 Waverley-place, which was hired at a rent of $6,500 per annum, and thither justice, in the shape of SHANDLEY, took its flight. But the prisoners are still where they were, and three-fourths of the foundation remain to be laid. On the corner of Tenth-street and Sixth-avenue the work has prospered pretty fairly. The granite basement is up about eight feet high. But Mr. CONNOLLY has not issued those bonds, and the work is stopped. Mr. PRAGUE has not been paid for his second plans, nor for his personal superintendence, &c., and he has been advised not to send in any bills at present. It would seem as if this delay had been intentional, and the design may have been to starve Mr. PRAGUE into compliance with their views. For his vouchers are necessary for the indorsement of the builder's bills, and he has notions of honesty very disgraceful in an attaché of Tammany.

Look to the Nominations.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The address of the Committee of Seventy to the citizens of the City and State is worthy of consideration and decided action. Let us not wait until the day of election, but organize now and select proper candidates for election. It is poor satisfaction to go to the polls to vote and only find candidates totally unfit by birth and want of education to represent any respectable party. Be active before election day—look to your nominations—your candidates.

At one time the idea prevailed that a legislator should be an educated, honest, upright man, well acquainted with history and his country. Compare our legislators by a standard of education; do they know anything? No, nothing! Many of them do not know the difference between Bunker Hill and Waterloo, or whether the battle of New-Orleans was fought in the United States or in France, if at all. As for political economy, science or art, that is out of the question. But many of them are quite familiar with the riots in New-York in 1863 and 12th of July, 1871, and have drawn large sums of money from the City Treasury for their "services," whereas if they received their just rewards, they would be drawing stone out of the Sing Sing quarry.

It is to be hoped that the good work begun by you, and faithfully followed up, will be carried out by the citizens, and that no disappointment will be had by nominating bad men to office. If we be beaten, let us be beaten fairly and squarely; then we can continue the fight. But, for the love of country, the love of justice, and everything that is dear to us, do not, by any view of expediency or false policy, be induced to commit a suicidal act by nominating bad men for the sake of carrying an election. By their works you know them. "Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" Can men make good legislators for others who do not know the first principles of good government themselves? New-York, look sharp to your nominations.

THE DEFAULTING PAY-MASTER.

Major Hodge's Statement Before the Court-Martial at Fort McHenry.

The Baltimore American gives, as quoted below, the statement made by Major HODGE before the Court-martial at Fort McHenry, on Tuesday. The exact amount of his defalcation is said to be $445,406 60, which was taken in sums of $500 to $50,000.

Mr. President and gentlemen of the Court:

As I had nothing to offer in defense which would be available in law as a justification or excuse, I pleaded guilty to the charges preferred against me, and to the specifications annexed to those charges. I shall rest on the real facts in the case in mitigation of your sentence. This was partly done in my confession which accompanies this paper as a part of my defense. Whatever punishment the Court may deem it proper to adjudge, either as part punishment for my misconduct, or as an example to persons engaged in the public service, I am prepared submissively to endure. Personally, no punishment or punishment which any tribunal can impose would or could be as painful and excruciating as the mental agony which I have suffered ever since I found that my private means were not sufficient to make up the deficiency in my official account. Every subsequent endeavor on my part to make up the deficiency only augmented the magnitude of my losses. But while I ask neither mercy nor charity on my own account, for I have no such claim to either, as this Court could hardly recognize, and am prepared to indorse, as I have said, without complaint, any penalty which the law and your sentence may award, still, as a husband and father, I humbly ask, for the sake of my innocent and distressed wife, and for my infant children, such merciful action upon your part as you may find consistent with your duty; and I find real comfort in the knowledge that this Court is composed of officers of high grades, honorable and brave men, such as are always generous to the vanquished, and to those who are powerless and unresisting; gentlemen who could not find any pleasure in imposing cruel, unusual or vindictive punishment.

In the confession heretofore made by me, and which I affirm to be true, I have stated truly and honestly the main facts in relation to my defalcation. I now desire to add a very few remarks, based on facts, by way of clearer and fuller explanation of the statements therein contained. I now state as a matter of fact, and which a thorough examination of my official reports and accounts will show to be true, that not $1 of the lost money was expended in my household, nor was any amount, even to the value of one cent, appropriated to my own benefit, or to the use or benefit of my family. My salary and the income from my private estate were more than sufficient for the wants of my family and for my personal wants; some for the payment of losses in my speculations. No credit was ever claimed in any of my accounts for money disbursed, which was not based on an actual payment of the precise amount for which credit is claimed; no complaint was ever made, nor were there any grounds for complaint, that persons to whom payments were made in any case received less, by a single cent, than the amounts for which they receipted. No receipt or other voucher was ever procured or presented which was not scrupulously correct in every particular. No false or fraudulent returns were ever rendered by me or my officer.

Desirous to make all the reparation in my power, I have turned over to the Government all my remaining private estate, to be applied to the reduction of my indebtedness, and my noble wife, against the advice and remonstrances of honorable and conscientious persons, insisted on surrendering her potential rights therein.

It will afford no pleasure, I am sure, to any member of this Court to learn the fact that neither my wife nor I have any resources now remaining, and that we have three destitute children wholly unprovided for, with the prospect of an early addition of another child. My counsel, who, at the request of my family, has conferred with me as to the character of my defense, fully concurs with me in the sentiment that it would be inconsistent with my line of defense, and unbecoming to present any legal questions as to the powers of the Court in awarding punishment. I feel quite satisfied that neither the Judge-Advocate nor this high Court would be willing to transcend the rules of law in any respect.

Mr. President and gentlemen, I crave forgiveness for trespassing so long on your patience. I will not detain you any longer. My case is respectfully submitted.

J. LEDYARD HODGE.

Sale of Scranton Coal—Advance in Price—130,000 Tons Disposed of.

The usual monthly sale of coal of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company took place yesterday, at No. 26 Exchange-place, Mr. JOHN H. DRAPER auctioneer. With one exception it was the largest sale the Company ever had, there being 130,000 tons disposed of, viz.: Lump, 11,000 tons; steam-boat, 19,000; grate, 25,000; egg, 18,000; stove 47,000, and chestnut 18,000. The average prices yesterday were: Lump, $4 18; steam-boat, $4 50; grate, $5 17½; egg, $5 29; stove, $6 03, and chestnut $4 65.

On comparison, these will be found to be considerably in advance of the average prices last year, which were: Lump, $4; steam-boat, $4 89; grate, $4 50; egg, $4 84½; stove, $5 38⅜; chestnut, $4 10. This increase in the prices of coal this year is attributable to the exhausted condition of the coal mines, the owners of which, owing to the prolonged strike of last year, have not as large a supply on hand as they would require to meet the exigencies of the approaching Winter. The following table will show how much the sales yesterday were in excess of the previous month's sale:

The Horse Market—A Collection of Bad Animals—A System of Torture.

Yesterday afternoon the horse market at the corner of Sixty-fifth-street and Second-avenue was attended by a rougher crowd than usual, and the animals put up for sale were of a very inferior class. Two of Mr. BERGH'S officers were present on behalf of the poor brutes, and many were condemned as unfit for further slavery. Some were diseased and others completely worn out and mere skeletons; others were ordered out of the yard as unfit for work, and were not allowed to be put up by the auctioneer. The roughs have a habit of fixing a stout pole between the rungs of the wheels of a cart, in order to try the strength of the horse attached to the vehicle. This not only tortures the poor beast, but often causes him to overstrain himself. The humanitarians put a stop to this practice.

A New Market for the City—Progress of the Work at West Thirty-fourth-Street.

The mammoth new market, foot of West Thirty-fourth-street, is progressing remarkably well, and promises to be the greatest ever built in New-York. Mr. HARRISON, the architect, is always found there from 8 A. M. until noon, and inspects its progress. Mr. JOHN T. CONOVER, the superintending builder, keeps an eye to his department and observes that the work goes on faithfully. The huge iron-work is being put up by the well-known Architectural Iron-works. The carpenter-works is being carried out by Messrs. JENNINGS & BROWN, who did the new additions to Bellevue and the Lunatic Asylum at Ward's Island. The new market will be completed within twelve months' time. It will prove a great boon to that part of the City, as well as a great benefit to the public.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

Opening of the Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church—Sermon by Rev. Dr. Houghton—Report on Admission of Churches.

The annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Diocese of New-York, commenced its labors yesterday morning in the fine old church of St. John's, on Varick street. At 10½ A. M., a long procession of white-robed choristers filed into the chancel, followed by the various clergymen detailed to take part in the service, by the rector of St. John's, Dr. COOK, and his ecclesiastical staff, and by Bishop POTTER, who was accompanied by Bishop QUINTARD, of Tennessee. They took their seats within the communion railing on either side of the altar, which was completely uncovered, save for the small white cloth which betokened that the sacraments were to be administered. The service of the morning was performed by Dr. Ryland, Dr. Theodore Irving, Dr. Wilders, of Riverdale; Dr. DIX, Dr. Oberstedt, of Rhinebeck; Dr. E. U. Morgan and Dr. Montgomery, of Mamaroneck. The vocal parts were exceedingly well rendered by the choir, especially the opening Jubilate, which was a composition of the incumbent, Rev. Dr. COOK. The first lesson happened, by a singular coincidence, to be taken from the sixtieth chapter of Isaiah, in which the prophet paints the time when Jerusalem would be freed from tyranny, when violence should no more be heard in her streets, neither waste nor corruption in her councils. The apposite nature of the text seemed to strike every one, and all, perhaps, breathed a silent prayer that such a time might soon come for New-York. And in the second lesson, by another coincidence, was that beautiful passage of St. John, when the Savior contrasts the good shepherd and the one who is a thief and a robber, and who cares not for the sheep.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. HOUGHTON, of the Church of the Transfiguration, better known as "the little church around the corner." He took for his text the passage from the third chapter of Ephesians, commencing at the fourteenth verse: "For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that He would grant you, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ."

St. Paul in the text, he said, uses the word family in a manner which admits of two interpretations. It may refer to the varied hierarchy of heaven, or to the many sections of the Church. I prefer to think that the apostle used the term with the sense that the saints of Ephesus were a part of the great family of heaven and earth, united in the bonds of a common fraternity under the loving care of one Providence. In such a sense the term family was also used in the Collect for the day, and in such a sense the Christian pastor is accustomed to construe it. Our family is greater than this Church contains, and we have brethren whom we shall not see in this Convention. If we ever regard them as aliens, we do it in manifest disregard of the Head of our Church, who suffers them with patience. We are bound together by common interests and common aims, woven into a household in which all must be recognized as brothers. When we come into this Convention it is not to isolate ourselves, or to separate our interests from those of our family. We come here to consult for that, and we go hence to work for that, not forgotten but cheered by the sympathy of our brethren.

After religious exercises, the Bishop declared the Convention organized. Dr. EIGENBROTH was appointed Secretary, Hon. Mr. RUGGLES and Gen. MORRELL assistants, and Mr. DE LANCEY Treasurer.

The Secretary read a report from the Committee on the Incorporation and Admission of Churches, presented by the Chairman, Hon. HAMILTON FISH. It represented that the Church of St. Luke's, of Haverstraw, incorporated Sept. 19, 1870, had presented their credentials, which had been found correct. It therefore recommended the admission of this Church; also the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, incorporated October, 1868, according to the law of April, 1854, had presented their credentials. But as this law was only to enable societies to build free churches, and as nowhere was there anything to prevent them from becoming Socinian, Moravian, Mohmamedan or Jewish, except a resolution of the trustees, which did not bind the rector, and might also be rescinded, the Committee recommended that it should not be admitted. Grace Church, of Milbrooktown, Dutchess County, incorporated November, 1865, also prayed for admission, but as the title of the corporation had not been properly stated in the application for a change of name, and certain revenue stamps were deficient, it shared the same fate.

Dr. EIGENBROTH offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That so much of the report of the Committee on the Incorporation and Admission of Churches as relates to the question whether a society incorporated under the Act of April 13, 1854, be a church within the interpretation of the constitution and canons of this "Church," be referred to the Committee on Canons, to consider and report upon the subject; and whether the admission of churches into union with this Convention should not be restricted to such as may have been incorporated under such law of the State as may have been approved by a formal vote of this Convension, instead of extending it to any law which has been or may be passed by the State Legislature in the matter, and report to next Convention.

This was adopted after a little discussion. The Church of St. Luke's, Haverstraw, was then proposed for admission and formally received. About this time, the Bishop of Alabama being present, was invited to take his seat beside Dr. POTTER, which he did.

The Convention adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Fall Opening of James McCreery & Co.

At the large dry-goods establishment of JAMES MCCREERY & CO., corner of Broadway and Eleventh-street, the usual Fall opening of Paris costumes and styles took place yesterday. The different departments of the first floor looked very attractive, owing to an excellent display of silks, camel's-hair shawls, &c. The ladies' and children's furnishing department and cloak-room of the second floor was fitted up in a gorgeous style. The goods worthy of special notice were a ladies' plain colored walking suit, and a peach-blossom silk evening dress. The former was made with a demi-plaiting of velvet at the bottom, over which lapped a deep pointed ruffle of silk, set off with side plaiting of velvet, and over all was a long, deep over-skirt, pointed and fringed, looped up on the sides and front. The whole was valued at $600. The second, or peach-blossom colored evening dress is an exquisite production, and bears an over-skirt with folds, fringed, a long detached train, made quite plain and very full. The waist is cut in the Pompadour style, and trimmed with point lace. The cost of this dress was $600, and, like the previous one, it was made by WORTH & CO., the celebrated dress-makers of Paris. An opera wrap, made of cashmere Sicilian, elegantly embroided with gold and silver braid, and trimmed with white fox fur, is worthy of special mention. Its price is $275. It was made by PINGET, of Paris. A variety of fur and velvet cloaks, and sacks bound and richly embroidered deserve more extended notice than can now be given them. Taking it as a whole, the collection is as choice a one as has for some time, if ever before, been exhibited in the City. Large crowds of people visited the establishment yesterday, and all appeared to be well pleased at what they had seen.

Daring Robbery in Madison-Avenue.

While passing through Madison-avenue yesterday afternoon, Mrs. LECOUR, of No. 114 East Forty-sixth-street, had her pocket-book, containing $13, snatched from her hand by a man named THOS. LARKIN. Mrs. LECOUR raised the alarm, and LARKIN was captured with the stolen property in his possession. Justice COULTER committed the prisoner for trial, in default of $2,000 bail.

Business Transacted in the United States District-Attorney's Office for the Past Year.

The report recently issued by the United States District-Attorney for the Southern District of New-York for the year ending June 30, 1871, shows the transaction of the following civil business in that office: Suits begun against the Collectors of Customs for alleged illegal imposition of duties, 389; old suits terminated, 1,094, of these 148 are in favor of the Collectors, 105 against them, and 841 were discontinued; 230 suits in Custom-house bonds were begun and 300 old suits were disposed of, only 1 of which was adverse graph and Pacific Mail were active and well maintained. Many of the old Western Railway Mortgages, Currency interest, are in request and prices higher, as a rule, than in the Summer months, when Money was cheaper. The New-York State Bounty 7 ₱ cents are up to 109¾ ₱ cent.

After the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Tuesday night. The Railways barely steady. Gold firm at 114¼ ₱ cent. The Customs demand today was $750,000. To-morrow the Treasury will sell at least $2,000,000.

The London Times reports as follows:

"A small portion of the gold withdrawals from the Bank today is understood to have been for transmission to New-York, although, in the present even position of the rate of exchange between the two countries, some amounts continue to reach us from that side. This state of affairs seems likely to continue for a week or two, since it is said that orders have been received from New-York for further remittances to be made hence, while, on the other hand, it is doubtful if the supply of bills on London in that City will be such as to prevent the shipment hither of moderate balances of specie. The cause of the demand for gold from this country for New-York is believed to have consisted in a rather large operation of a temporary character, which is now understood to have been nearly completed.

It is a remarkable circumstance that while France pays away large amounts of coin, the money market at Paris continues very easy, while in Germany the receipt of all this wealth is accompanied by a monetary crisis, which creates great depression on the various Bourses. Loans on the best securities now command as much as seven ₱ cent. interest. The cause is stated to be the large circulation of French coin, which the German Governments pay out, while the Prussian banks refuse to take them. Thus, if peace act in the same way upon the money market as would an excessive issue of shares or stocks. Of course, the disturbance can be but temporary."

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND LAND-GRANT BONDS OF THE

ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY RAILROAD COMPANY,

IN DENOMINATIONS OF $1,000, $500, AND $100, can now be had from the undersigned or through the principal banks and bankers of the United States. The attention of investors is invited to the merits of these bonds, secured by a first and only mortgage on the road, equipments, franchises, and property of a trunk line of railroad which will shorten the distance between New-York and San Francisco some 230 miles, and in addition the mortgage to secure the bonds covers a land-grant of 1,500,000 acres of the most fertile land in the West, which is prohibited from being sold at less than four ($4) dollars per acre by the terms of the mortgage deed, and according to the present market price of the Illinois Central Company's lands is worth $18,750,000. This loan was originally for $5,500,000, but has been largely reduced by subscriptions of actual investors. The remaining balance of the loan is offered at 97½ and accrued interest, but the right is reserved to advance the price at any time, with, out notice.

The bonds have thirty years to run; bear 8 per cent. interest, payable in New-York, London or Frankfort-on-the-Main, at the option of the holder, without notice, free of taxes. BOTH PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ARE PAYABLE IN GOLD. They are Coupon Bonds, but can be registered with the coupons OFF, and interest paid to registered owner. Interest payable Aug. 15 and Feb. 15. A liberal sinking fund, formed from the entire land sales, in payment for which the bonds will be received at par and accrued interest, provides for the early extinguishment of this loan.

Trustees—Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

These bonds offer favorable inducements to parties desiring to fund their Five-Twenties or other high-priced securities.

In converting Five-Twenties the investors realize 17 per cent. profit on the principal; 2 per cent. per annum excess of interest; and at the same time get a perfect security.

Maps, circulars, documents, and full information furnished on application.

Though acting as agents for the sale of this loan, our firm buy and sell in their regular business the bonds of the St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Company, those of the Eastern Division being now quoted at 102 and accrued interest. These were originally placed by us at 97½.

JAY COOKE & CO.

☞ FIVE-TWENTIES CAN BE FUNDED with us into the best Railroad Bonds. We recommend those of the RONDOUT AND OSWEGO COMPANY for three reasons: 1. These Bonds are safe. The road is near this City. Every investor can travel over it for himself. The net earnings of one-half of the line pay at present 10 per cent. on all the bonds which will be issued on the whole road. 2. By conversion, as we recommend, the investor adds 25 per cent. to his capital. 3. He also adds 48 1-3 per cent. to his income.

EDWARD HAIGHT & CO.,
No. 9 Wall-st.

☞ THE WEST WISCONSIN RAILWAY is now very nearly finished, and trains will be running through from Tomah to St. Paul by Nov. 1. The earnings of the Road from local traffic on the completed portion constitute already a profitable business; and arrangements and connections are about perfected which will make it the Great Air-Line Route from Chicago to the North-west, effecting a saving of more than 100 miles over the present route. The Bonds are a First Mortgage on the road itself and on a valuable Land Grant of 1,000,000 acres. They bear interest in gold at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and are sold now at 90 and accrued interest in currency by WHITE, MORRIS & CO., No. 18 Wall-st., and GWYNNE, JOHNSON & DAY, No. 16 Wall-st., where pamphlets and further information may be obtained.

☞ LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD CONSOLIDATED SEVEN PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS for sale at ninety-two and one-half and accrued interest.

FLOUR AND MEAL—Western and State Flour has been in brisk demand since our last, at a further improvement of 10c.@15c., and in some instances of 25c. ₱ bbl., closing, however, tamely, buyers evincing some reluctance to operate freely at the advanced figures claimed by the holders. The sales reported since our last of 31,150 bbls., all told, including 1,000 inferior to very choice Superfine State and Western at $5 90@6 35; inferior to very good Extra State, $6 50@6 95; very good to fancy at $6 95@7 35; poor to very good shipping Extra Western, at $6 80@6 85; poor to very good shipping brands round-hoop Extra Ohio, $6 65@7, ₱ bbl. Southern Flour has been in good request at firmer prices, with sales since our last of 1,200 bbls., at $6 15@7 35 for poor to good, and $7 35@10 for good to very choice Extra, ₱ bbl. Rye Flour continues in fair demand at $4 15@5 40 ₱ bbl.; sales, 480 bbls. Cornmeal has been in active request at $3 30@3 85 for White and Yellow Western, $4 05@4 for Jersey, $4 10 for Marsh's Caloric, and $4 10@4 15 for Brandywine, ₱ bbl.; sales, 1,050 bbls.

GRAIN—There has been quite an active call noted for Wheat, chiefly for shipping, early and in part to arrive, at a further rise of 2c.@3c. a bushel, on a materially reduced offering of prime samples, particularly of Spring and Red Amber Winter, which have been in most request. Toward the close, under renewed firmness in the ocean freight line, the market seemed rather slack and prices less buoyant, the export bid evincing less confidence. The New-York Times,

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, and advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

The utmost care will be devoted to gathering political news from special sources during the Presidential canvass. This department of the paper will be unusually full and trustworthy. Renewed enterprise will be exhibited in every department of the paper, and large space will be devoted to reports of speeches made during elections, or on other important political occasions.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

ANDREW WHITE, of Onondaga. The report was adopted, and the Tammany delegation withdrew. The Convention adjourned till 9 A. M. today. The Massachusetts Republican State Convention met yesterday at Worcester, and continued in session until a late hour last night. Later news from the fire raging along the coast of Lake Michigan, between Manitowoc and Abnapee, state that the flames are lapping up everything, and sweeping houses, barns, stores and piers in its course. The losses in Kewanee County will reach $250,000. The farmers are burying their household goods in the ground to save them.

Attempts to Incite a Riot.

A few days ago somebody or other caused the Herald to give the public a pretty plain intimation that unless they stopped their murmurings against TWEED & Co., the "mob" would be set loose at them. A good many strange things have appeared in the Herald lately, of which we hope that Mr. BENNETT will be ashamed when he returns to New-York; and among them was this threat of mob violence.

There is still another paper in this City, "inspired" by SWEENY and HALL, and wholly supported by them—a paper so filthy and contemptible that no one would dream of taking any notice of anything it said, and so obscure that it never comes into this office unless some one does us the great favor of sending us a copy, which interesting event happened yesterday. If this villainous sheet accused a man of murder, or burglary, or arson, all his friends would advise him to pay no attention to it, since the scoundrels who write the libels would find no one to believe them, even upon their oaths.

This is the appropriate channel through which the thieves of the Ring now make a fresh appeal to the mob. They, who have most to fear from popular wrath than any other men in the world, dare to set their hacks to stir up a riot. The mob are told by a miscreant in SWEENY'S pay to meet at the Park, and at once proceed to attack the homes of Mr. GEORGE JONES and Mr. L. J. JENNINGS, of the TIMES, and of Mr. JOHN FOLEY—the names and addresses being carefully given. Of course this is a clear attempt to produce a riot, and if there were any law to be had in this City, and if the Government were not a mere name for a band of thieves, the vile wretch who is the author of the proclamation would be indicted for the crime. It is undoubtedly the duty of the authorities to bring the ruffian to justice—perhaps it is too much to ask the Committee of Seventy to interfere. The District-Attorney and his assistant will look on with delight. FELLOWS is himself a cowardly libeler—formerly a Major in the rebel service, brought here by SWEENY, and made Assistant District-Attorney. Yet even such men may be compelled to do their duty. Will the people patiently stand by while the peace of the City is threatened, and make no effort to crush the plotters?

While SWEENY'S outcasts try to create a riot in this City, and publish the addresses of houses which are first to be attacked, and GARVIN looks on at such an outrage with a smile—might it not be worth while for SWEENY and his friends to consider whether they are not letting loose a power which will infallibly sweep them away, whatever may become of the TIMES' managers, against whom he directs his mob to go to work? How much would it take now to induce the public to sweep SWEENY and all his gang out of the City? People who live over a powder-magazine should not go about dropping sparks. A crowd of honest laboring men might reasonably feel an interest in studying the garden and mansion of the "Boss," or the houses of HALL and PETER B. SWEENY. But we will not give the addresses of those houses, because in that kind of work SWEENY'S felons had better be allowed to enjoy a monopoly. Yet it is absolutely necessary that the public should be kept informed of the tactics now pursued by the Ring. The thieves say they will not give up their positions, they will not restore the plunder they have taken; and they incite their followers to violence, and openly give the names and addresses of three persons who are to be first attacked. And all this open and most infamous violation of law can be safely perpetrated in New-York City, under the direct encouragement of the authorities, and the vagabond who commits the offense is allowed to go unscathed. Is not this a glorious development of freedom?

It is only necessary to add that we are graciously informed that our houses shall not be attacked (at present) if we consent to a modification of Judge BARNARD'S injunction. For this short respite we are profoundly grateful; but if we could have had our way, this dodge of SWEENY & Co. should never have succeeded—and as for their threats of violence, so far as we are concerned, they are of as little account as the ravings of maniacs. We deeply regret that it was thought to be necessary to modify BARNARD'S injunction. But we are told that Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN advised the modification, so that money might be raised for current expenses. We have confidence in Mr. GREEN'S judgment, much as we deplore the necessity of yielding anything to the clamors of the Ring. They are determined to have a riot, and why not face it now as well as at any other time? On such occasions as these, nothing is to be gained by concessions to the ruffians—on the contrary, everything is imperiled. Yet we admit that Mr. GREEN'S position was a very embarrassing one. The fight is not going on as we should like to see it conducted—it may be necessary, and that soon, for the people to take the management of it into their own hands. While we can, however, let us try to finish this contest with prudence and wisdom.

One word more as to the threats of mob violence, and it is a serious word: Let HALL and SWEENY beware of going too far with such threats. The temper of the great body of the public is not favorable to these exhibitions. At present they are waiting to see whether or not the Committee of Seventy can do anything for them. If they find that no help is to be had from that quarter, they will be likely to seek for redress in some other—for they have solemnly decided to get rid of TWEED and all his crew. Now, one appeal from us, such as SWEENY'S jailbirds were instructed to put forward yesterday, would bring the Ring down in less than twenty-four hours—but Heaven forbid that there should be any necessity for making that appeal. In the meanwhile, let the murderous gang of the Ring do their best and their worst. Whatever they may do, they cannot help their employers. The Committee of Seventy hold the hands of the people just now. If that Committee cannot drag the Ring down, let us know it soon, and other means will be found for accomplishing the work, and restoring peace and order to the City.

The Convention at Syracuse.

The efforts of the Republican Convention yesterday to secure harmony without a sacrifice of principle turned out to be fruitless. The New-York City delegations were offered seats on equal footing. They were also offered equal share in naming the members of the State Central Committee. These propositions were made by a committee chosen by Hon. A. D. WHITE, the temporary Chairman,—himself a man of pure fame,—from the representatives of the entire State, and they were accompanied by a resolution indorsing the reorganization of the party in the City by the present State Committee, and instructing its successor to endeavor to unite under that organization all the good men of the party. The report, as a whole, was rejected by the contesting (Tammany Republican) delegation, and the delegation withdrew. We regret the result, because, in common with other people, we had desired and hoped for harmony. It is impossible to have it, and the people can see why. What will be the next step of the "bolters." We cannot now say, but we warn them that, after having rejected a perfectly fair and impartial adjudication of their claims by the highest tribunal of the Republican Party, if they undertake independent and opposing action in regard to the approaching elections, their complicity with Tammany will be too plain to be longer ignored.

If the men involved in this secession will not join the ranks in the fight against corruption, they cannot carry on a campaign of their own except in the direct interest of the enemy. That the people will not endure. Every man who connects himself with such a movement will be certainly and justly disgraced.

The disgraceful scenes which took place at the Convention yesterday seem to be due entirely to the Tammanyites—although they, of course, will throw the blame on the other side. There is more need than ever for the active interference of the great body of the people. Let them show in a decided manner that they will never again support any man who receives pay from Tammany Hall, or who holds office under it. That is a perfectly plain and simple test, and it is one which we have a right to insist should be applied to the present difficulties.

A Great Subject for Posterity.

The historical whitewasher of the future is likely to be somewhat hard up for subjects. Modern civilization does not turn out great rascals fast enough to supply the literary artists whose especial function it is to make black appear to be white. The records of the past have been ransacked to supply scoundrels big enough to make their apotheosis a genuine sensation, and the records of the past are pretty nearly used up. NERO has had his turn and so has HENRY VIII. and ROBESPIERRE; RICHARD III. has been conclusively shown to have been grossly maligned, and Judas Iscariot has been proved to have been merely an amiable though rather indiscreet enthusiast. It is given to so few to reach the sublime in villainy, that this generation will be found to have earned the lasting gratitude of posterity for having furnished two splendid subjects for rehabilitation—the King of Dahomey and "Boss" TWEED. It is a cardinal principle with the historical-varnishing school to judge a man out of his own mouth. The thief, professing his art as a sort of benevolent blood-letting of people troubled with a plethora of wealth, can thus be very readily transformed into a philanthropist, and the murderer, acting under the guidance of the principles of Mr. MALTHUS, becomes an erratic theorist and nothing more.

When some ingenious biographer shall be attracted to the memory of TWEED by the fine aroma of Sing Sing which will cling to it throughout the ages, he will find the speeches of that immortal celebrity a most invaluable aid to the reconstruction of his character. The long-standing popular delusion that he was, on the whole, the biggest thief of modern times, can be easily dissipated by an appeal to the great man's own words. For, did he not in a Fourth-of-July speech express his decided preference for "a strict Government;" and shortly before the proverbial ingratitude of republics caused his translation to the State's Prison, did he not, with admirable temper and moderation, decline to notice, except in the law Courts, the charges of stealing made against him, with much pertinacity, by journals and persons reputed respectable? Current history may, up to that time, have referred to TWEED as a man of sordid training, low cunning, and brutal instincts. But how could these aspersions be more thoroughly disproved than by recalling his touching reference to the "friends of his childhood," and his very affecting habit of going around among them, "taking them by the hand," and in the most friendly way in the world, crossing their palm with greenbacks? He nourished sublime ideas from his earliest years, and it was from a too exclusive devotion to the ideal of the furniture business that he earned the title of "The Bankrupt Chair-maker." He lived, however, to realize the great conception of his mechanic days, when through his friend INGERSOLL, he supplied the City with miles of tables, furlongs of chairs, and acres of carpets. Can any one doubt that the man who invited "a fair and impartial" scrutiny of his acts from the unblemished Democracy of Tammany Hall, should have been anything but an "irreproachable patriot?" Can it be pretended that the man who could discern "the smile of victory beaming from every glance of your eye," had not a soul attuned to lofty thoughts and benignant purposes?

TWEED is, unfortunately, not satisfied with the prospect of humbugging posterity. He is sternly resolved to continue sitting, like an old man of the sea, on the shoulders of his party and of his exhausted fellow-citizens. Let Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN and the respectable Democrats look to it—the "Boss" has made up his mind that the State Convention "can't get along without us." The districts will, it appears, obey the behests of Tammany, and the State Committee, with its display of righteous indignation, can be quietly ignored. TWEED believes he has money enough to buy up the Convention, and then—he will show that his hand has not lost its cunning by getting himself counted in by a 30,000 instead of a 22,000 majority, let the people do what they will. On this last point he has set his mind—in fact, "he would not take any less," and we trust honest Democrats and the people generally like the prospect.

Ocean Steam-Ships.

Three steam-ships, the Baltic, the City of Brooklyn, and the Wyoming, arrived at this port from Liverpool on Sunday, each of which made the passage within nine days. The achievement and coincidence are remarkable, and remind us—in spite of a common opinion that the Atlantic passage has become as short in the average as it is likely to be—that in reality the time is being gradually reduced. Improvements in model and in machinery, the sedulous care begotten of competition, and the advantages of riper experience, unite in bringing about such a result, and there is reason to think the time will continue to be shortened. Whether the passage will ever be made within a week or not, it would be hazardous to predict; but certainly stranger things have happened.

It is noteworthy that one of the three ships named above was on her first passage, and that she beat her competitors by some hours. The fact illustrates the superiority of modern machinery. It was once thought a matter of course that a new steam-ship should make poor time at first until her works got in good running order. Even now it is usually considered that such a vessel is at some disadvantage in making speed. The fact, however, appears to be that the different parts of the latest engines are so much more skillfully made than they once were, and so much better adjusted from the outset, that the disadvantage is likely to disappear. Like the watches made by machinery, such engines may be expected to work as well when freshly turned out from the shop as after they have been tried, and eased, and otherwise elaborated. The tendency of the companies appears to be to build longer and longer ships, with a somewhat inferior relative increase of beam. It was supposed that the unfortunate Great Eastern would check the fashion of building long ships. Yet whereas the Persia and Scotia and Russia were, we believe, the longest respectively of the Atlantic steamers when constructed, and are all under four hundred feet—the two first at least certainly are—there are now several ships of more than 430 feet in length, one of which is the most fortunate of the three referred to above. It would seem that considerable advantages must nevertheless accrue from building the ships of a line of a common size and model; or, at all events, of having the enginess facsimiles of each other; since, among other reasons, in that case the comparative certainty of good work from the first might be depended upon.

A discussion has been going on in Liverpool concerning the relative performances of the old and new ships, and the logs of two—each crack vessels in their day—have been particularly compared. These are the Cambria and the Persia. The former started from Liverpool March 29, 1856, and reached Boston, via Halifax, in eighteen days. She sailed from Boston on April 23 following, and arrived out in thirteen days, nine hours. The average passages made by the Persia in one year are set down at eleven days, three hours, eighteen minutes, going West, and nine days, fourteen hours, twenty-five minutes, going East. It is said that the Scotia made six runs from Liverpool to New-York, in 1870, the average of which was nine days, twenty-three hours, thirty-eight minutes; and six runs from New-York to Liverpool, the average of which was nine days, nine hours and forty-five minutes. In the same year the Russia made nine passages out and nine home, making an average in the former of ten days, five hours and thirty minutes, and in the latter of nine days, thirteen hours and sixteen minutes. During the same year, and on the same authority, the City of Paris made an outward average of ten days, twelve hours, fifty-one minutes, and a homeward average of nine days and twenty hours. The City of Brussels was less lucky in her outward trips, but averaged nine days, sixteen hours the other way. Of course, each of these vessels has very much beaten its average on particular trips, and all of them, we believe, claim special logs better than those just made by either of the ships that came in on Sunday.

Improved Croquet.

To a large class of society the inventor of that cheerful out-door game known as croquet may almost be regarded in the light of a public benefactor. Before he came the Summer watering-place was not a region of unalloyed delights. There, also, ennui, like the poet's care, followed his victims, sitting beside them in the smoking-car, or snugly hidden in the depths of Saratoga trunks. The most cultivated capacity for indolence craves, at times, occupation and employment. Yet the idleness of the Summer only repeated and intensified the idleness of the Winter. There was the dance, to be sure, in the evening, and the drive in the afternoon. There remained many intervals in the absorbing business of dressing and dining, when something to do would have been an absolute relief. Besides, one goes to the country, at least nominally, for health and air, and a certain amount of out-door exercise is only a proper sacrifice to this respectable tradition. Riding would do very nicely for the purpose were it not that comparatively few, even of the chosen of fashion are able to buy saddle horses, and fewer still are able to use them. Walking would answer every purpose, but walking, except for shopping and in the city, is considered a trifle vulgar. So, in this dearth of occupation, the fashionable watering-place became the very land of drowsihood and dullness, where everybody moped or slept, and longed for the day when it should be lawful to return to town.

To this unhappy strait came a beneficent unknown, with a new and fascinating amusement. Croquet was found at once to answer every demand of the situation. It was sociable, in the first place, and was an excuse for young ladies and gentlemen to come together in the open air, without loving each other too perceptibly. The conduct of the game demanded a certain degree of manual skill, and so offered at once an agreeable occupation to the mind and a gentle exercise to the body. On the other hand, it was not too exacting, and there was ample time for little flirtations between the strokes. Not the least of its attractions was the occasion it gave for a fresh variety of coquetish costumes and attitudes, so as to appeal at once and powerfully to feminine vanity and masculine tastes.

With so many advantages in its favor, it was not surprising that the new game took from the first a firm hold on public favor. Throughout the land there is scarcely a Summer hotel or country-house whose lawns, in the season, are not daily made gay with the bright dresses and picturesque poses of a croquet party, or where unwary, middle-aged gentlemen are not nightly brought to grief over the treacherous and scarifying hoops. It must be confessed that this popularity is not undeserved. The game is innocent, amusing and healthful, and, what is best of all, it brings to a class of our people, who are apt to need them greatly, the medicinal benefits of air and sunshine. If it has one drawback it is that it lacks excitement. But for even that defect a Virginia gentleman has lately suggested an admirable remedy. He proposes to settle those little disputes which will arise in the best-conducted games by a resort to pistols on the spot. In fact, he did so arrange a difference of opinion with another Virginia gentleman, in the course of a game at Abingdon a day or two ago. The latter gentleman being killed, was thus simply and easily shown to be wrong, and the game, moreover, was greatly enlivened. From this ingenious fusion of the "code" with the laws of croquet, we expect the game to acquire renewed popularity, especially in the South. The "outs" might amuse themselves by practicing on the "ins," or the "rovers" could while away the time by peppering the company generally. In time it may be common to say of a murdered man that he has been croqueted, instead of "rubbed out" or "done for." By all means let the croquet-players consider this pregnant suggestion.

The New Rifle Club.

Some time since we referred to a project for the formation in this City of an association for rifle practice, similar in aim to the well-known National Rifle Association of England. We now learn that such a club has been actually organized, and, at the low rate of dues which has been fixed, will doubtless attract a large membership. There is no lack of interest in the subject on the part of our citizen soldiers. What has been wanted hitherto was a systematic encouragement and direction of this individual ardor. With one or two exceptions, none of our City militia regiments have made any arrangements for regular practice, nor apparently given the matter any attention at all. The desired impetus will be supplied, we trust, by the new association, which may, perhaps, in time come to rival in proficiency and numbers its foreign prototype. What gratifying results may be expected from such an enterprise well organized and zealously carried out, may be seen every year in the wonderful shooting at Wimbledon, where it is no uncommon thing to see accurate marksmanship at so long a range as eighteen hundred yards. The new association justifies a reasonable hope that in a few years our militiamen will become tolerably expert in the practical use of their weapons.

We presume it is intended to have public exhibitions of skill on the English plan. The pleasant meetings, so graphically described by correspondents, would no doubt prove, if repeated here, a great attraction, and furnish in themselves a powerful incentive to practice. To carry off the prize of marksmanship from a field of skilled contestants, would be a triumph that any gentleman might justly be proud of. Perhaps before many years, we shall have our American Wimbledon, where some Yale or Harvard under-graduate shall astonish us by hitting unseen bulls' eyes at incredible ranges. Jerome Park is an instance of the ease with which honestly managed sports may be carried on here. It is not to be doubted that a festival at once so picturesque and so important as a national rifle meeting would meet with equal popular favor.

We may also suggest the propriety of a closer attention to artillery practice. We are not aware that our civic artillerymen ever attempt to practice at all, and even the regular gunners, judging from those in our harbor forts, might be better drilled. Apparently it is impossible for these marksmen to hit so prominent a target as one of Col. FISK'S steam-boats, at a distance of only a few hundred yards. The futile attempt of the veterans at Fort Tompkins to sink the Plymouth Rock, some time ago, was very nearly renewed on last Tuesday, when, at the moderate range of a mile and a half, they could do no better than send a shell through the jib of a pilot-boat. This inaccuracy, while doubtless gratifying to its immediate beneficiaries, is yet mortifying to a more comprehensive patriotism. If it be necessary for the effectual defense of our harbor that Col. FISK'S boats should be treated as hostile cruisers, it would of course be reassuring to know that each hypothetical invader was promptly sent to the bottom. Perhaps, however, the daily sinking of a steam-boat or pilot-boat is not absolutely essential to the public safety, and in that case, it might be better if Fort Tompkins found a less perilous range for its artillery. Skill in shooting may often be shown by missing as well as hitting, and that appears to be the sort of skill which our harbor artillery-men need to cultivate. Now, why is it not practicable to secure a safe range in the neighborhood of the City, where our militia artillery companies might have regular practice? Toward the eastern end of Long Island such a range could probably be found. In the event of war, an emergency might very easily arise in which the safety of the City would depend on its citizen gunners. Why, then, should they not be drilled?

Corruption in Wall-Street.

The blunting of moral sense, the callous unconscientiousness which the atmosphere of Wall-street seems to produce with appalling swiftness on so many who enter it, has had of late years many sad and startling examples. Men previously honorable and upright in all their dealings become infected with the terrible malaria of speculation, and straightway honor flies from them. They betray their dearest friends, and rob those who trust them with as little compunction as a "Ring" official. The case of Pay-master HODGE presents a painful example of this corrupting influence. But what is even more suggestive is the assertion made in his confession, that his embezzlements were connived at, if not prompted, by the Wall-street brokers who managed his unhappy speculations. The charge gains color from the arrest on Tuesday of one of the members of a well-known firm in Exchange-place, on an affidavit of Assistant District-Attorney PURDY, alleging his complicity with the defaulting Pay-master. Whether this is really the guilty party is not yet evident, and we do not propose to prejudge the case. But it seems probable that some broker did commit the offense for which Mr. JACKSON has been arrested; did use the money advanced by HODGE, knowing it to be Government money, and perhaps actually advised this dishonest conversion of the public funds. And if that broker be found and convicted of the crime, we trust to see him punished with the extreme rigor of the law. His guilt is, if anything, greater than that of the actual defaulter, for it adds the darker sin of temptation to dishonesty. It is just such crafty insidious knaves who have gone far to make Wall-street a name of evil repute; who help to create gold panics and stock "corners," and whose infectious immorality is gradually undermining the commercial integrity of the country. We look to see this financial rascal impartially and sternly dealt with.

Mr. BEN. BUTLER suffered at Worcester, yesterday, one of those defeats to which his long service as Democratic candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, and his experience in the war, ought to have made him accustomed. The country will feel relieved to know that the General's long campaign of demagogueism, vituperation, and personal vain glory, has resulted in a signal failure. It is his political Dutch Gap, by which he has been for the present effectually "bottled up." If he undertakes further operations, his reputation for political skill will be as completely gone as is his military fame. Free Government is safer and stronger whenever a practical check is put upon the ambition of such men as he. The defeat of BUTLER is the more gratifying in that it was effected by the nomination of Mr. WASHBURN, who is as good a public man as BUTLER is a bad one.

MINOR TOPICS.

The leaders of the Ring are now trying to incite the Park laborers to commit a riot. They are recommended to mark the houses of three residents of this City, and attack them first. These are indications of pretty active measures on the part of the RING. Do the Committee of Seventy propose to take equally active measures? Are they willing to stand by and see such preparations made by the men they are expected to hunt down, and yet move not a finger?

Republicans throughout the State will do well to imitate the example of those of Albany County in their Senatorial nominations. The Republican candidate in that county is Mr. CHAS. H. ADAMS, of Cohoes, an upright, energetic man of unimpeachable integrity. He is opposed by JNO. TRACEY, of Albany, one of the most bitter and subservient of partisans. The nomination of Mr. ADAMS is strengthened by the remaining names on the county ticket. The names are all those of honest and reliable men, —not a hack politician, not a "place-man" in the number.

Those who delight in auguries will have a fine subject in a recent accident to the Ex-Emperor NAPOLEON'S walking-stick. The stick is surmounted by a heavy gold eagle having a ball in its mouth, and, being at once a gift and a type of the Imperial sway is greatly prized. Unfortunately, while standing on a jetty by the sea-side the other day, His Majesty let the cane drop into the water. It was grappled for at once, but without success, although the experiment was tried repeatedly and with great care. The Emperor was in despair, when suddenly a diver appeared who plunged boldly down in search of the lost treasure. Six times did this diving expert descend into the tide and return unsuccessful. But the seventh time—let the number be read with a thrill of complacency—the gold eagle came up again, and was safely restored to its owner. The latter gave the diver his carte, and, it is to be hoped, something more; for the omen, judiciously handled, ought to be highly serviceable just now to the Imperial cause.

A party of white men started twenty-seven years ago to explore Western Australia, and have never been heard of since. They were headed by one LEICHARDT, and the common theory has been that they either fell victims to privation or to the savages. But a strange rumor comes from Australia that LEICHARDT is still alive, and in the same kind of captivity as was that of the Frenchman GUINNARD, among the Patagonians. The story is that he has become insane and has long white hair. A picked member of the Queensland native Police, one GILMORE, was detailed some time ago to investigate the matter. He penetrated a long way into the wilderness with his search party, and finally discovered what were supposed to be the remains of a white man. For reasons, not before us, these were assumed to be the remains of LEICHARDT. But a pioneer, to whose statements the Australian Press attach importance, has since declared that the "mad white man" is in the custody of a tribe of blacks, who live far beyond the point to which GILMORE'S search party ever penetrated, and the theory that this is the unfortunate LEICHARDT has again been revived. It is understood that an expedition is projected, and that the truth will soon be made known, and the prisoner, if indeed there is one, rescued.

The Sweeny party call for a riot. Is it not nearly time that the people took some effectual steps for their own protection? If we must have a riot, may we not just as well have it at once and get it over? Or are the people prepared to submit to a terrorism infinitely worse than that of the Commune in Paris?

If SWEENY and HALL are so anxious to collect a mob and set it to work attacking private houses and persons, might not some active men on the honest side begin to bestir themselves? This plan of calling upon the Park laborers and others may fail this week, but it may succeed next, and evidently the Ring are resolved never to go down without a repetition of the scenes of the 12th of July. Is it not about time to look for some decisive step from the Committee of Seventy—even if it were only the indictment of the miscreant whom the Ring employs to incite the Irish to a breach of the peace?

The awful explosion at Stowmarket has been followed by an investigation of the explosive properties of gun-cotton. It has been proved that dry gun-cotton may explode without "detonator ignition," which means that under certain circumstances it is liable to spontaneous combustion. The fact is established that at a temperature of about 150° Fahrenheit, gun-cotton, "under ordinary circumstances," will explode. It is pointed out that this gives slender margin of safety for cotton-loaded torpedoes, stowed in iron ships that cruise in the tropics. Another source of danger is apprehended in "vibratory concussion," such as that of ordnance fired on board ship, or the rattling of a train on rails, either of which, it is thought, may cause gun-cotton to ignite. All things considered, the risks of this formidable agent are so many that it would be apparently wise to disuse it altogether; unless, indeed, some absolute protective can be devised such as Dr. DUPRE suggests, and which consists in turning the gun-cotton back into cotton again—a resource difficult, if not impossible, as applied to torpedoes, and some kinds of shells, in which the material is now so largely employed.

A mysterious disappearance is reported at Babbicombe, on the southern coast of Devonshire. It appears that a young lady, enticed, as is supposed, by the tranquility of the bay, went out, unattended, for a sail. Since then she has not been heard of. Her little boat has been found, beached in an adjacent cove, and her hat has been discovered floating on the water; but beyond this there is no trace of her whatever. A vague rumor is, however, in circulation to the effect that two strange carriages were seen in the neighborhood about the time of the disappearance, and popular suspicion attaches to the direction of a certain conventual establishment situated near Torquay.

The iron horse has at last gone straight through Mount Cenis. On the 13th of September the first train passed through the eight-mile tunnel amid great rejoicings. Signor GRATTONI, the engineer, and many prominent officials were of the party, and the transit to the northern outlet was made in forty minutes. The train returned to the Italian side, on the upgrade, in fifty-five minutes. It was found that the steam discharged during the first passage had entirely disappeared from the tunnel, and the trial is regarded as in every way a complete success. Thus one of the greatest engineering undertakings of modern times has passed into successful operation.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Harry Sanderson.

Mr. HARRY SANDERSON, well known here for many years as a very gifted pianist, died yesterday, at his dwelling in this City. He was aged thirty-four years. Few artists of eminence were more favored by nature than Mr. SANDERSON. His natural powers of execution were marvelous, and had they been not increased, but regulated by study, he would surely have had no rival as a brilliant performer. Mr. SANDERSON, however, was content to rest upon laurels acquired at a less liberal outlay of time than worshipers of art usually consent to make, and he won a wide reputation as a remarkable ad captandum player. His most notable performances were given with LOUIS MORRAU GOTTSCHALK, who was his warm personal friend as well as his admirer. Mr. SANDERSON was in good health on Saturday last. An epileptic fit, we learn, terminated his life. The funeral services occur on Friday morning, the remains being borne to the Church of the Messiah, at the corner of Park-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, at 10 o'clock.

Attempted Murder by Dr. Shine—He Fires Two Shots at Dr. Merrill and then Makes His Escape.

For some time past a feud has existed between Dr. JOHN H. MERRILL, of No. 16 Greenwich-street, and Dr. WILLIAM SHINE, of No. 20 Greenwich-street, formerly in the Coroner's office, as Deputy for Coroner FLYNN. Dr. SHINE claimed that Dr. MERRILL had taken a patient from him, and meeting him in the house of the disputed patient made an assault upon him, and inflicted severe injuries. For this offense he was arrested on complaint of Dr. MERRILL, but was never brought to trial. Soon after his arrest Dr. SHINE brought a charge of malpractice against Dr. MERRILL, and an investigation was had by one of the Coroners, which resulted in acquitting Dr. MERRILL. After this, nothing further occurred between the parties until about 5 o'clock last evening, as Dr. MERRILL was crossing Broadway, Dr. SHINE drove very close to him in a buggy, and nearly ran him down. Dr. MERRILL cried out to him, "You scamp, what are you trying to do?" He turned his horse around, and as Dr. MERRILL undertook to cross Morris-street, he drove nearly up to the curb and struck at him several times with his whip, and as Dr. MERRILL passed on, threatened to "fix him." When Dr. MERRILL got home, Dr. SHINE came to his stoop about 7½ P. M., and told him if he would come down on the walk he would give him a thrashing. SHINE'S wife then interfered, but he struck her back and started for Dr. MERRILL again, who retreated to his office and shut the door, and as he passed an open window, SHINE discharged two shots from a revolver at him, one ball passing close to his head and lodging in the door, from which he extracted it, the other whizzing past his body. He then made his escape, and though the Police were in search of him, he was not arrested up to a late hour last night.

Dr. SHINE was arrested shortly before midnight in DOOLEY'S drinking den, at the corner of Amity and Thompson-streets, by Officers QUIGLEY and THOMPSON, Twenty-seventh Precinct, and taken to the Liberty-street Police Station, where he was locked up to await arraignment before Justice HOGAN this morning.

THE RING INVITING RIOT.

The City Laborers Urged to Deeds of Violence.

Intense Indignation Among the Respectable Classes.

Another Important Order from Judge Barnard—The School Teachers to be Paid.

Intense indignation was created in the City, yesterday, by the publication in HALL and SWEENY'S newspaper of a highly-inflammatory article, inciting the unpaid laborers to riot and bloodshed. For weeks the laborers have been prompted to besiege the Controller's office, and have been urged on by the Ring's adherents to demand of Mr. GREEN the money due them, which Messrs. HALL, TWEED and SWEENY have long since pocketed. Since the perpetuation of the injunction against the City the game of this precious trio of thieves has been to precipitate a riot, and the attempt to embarrass Mr. GREEN by the loud cries of the laborers for money was their first move in that direction. The article alluded to which an intelligent working man yesterday pronounced as simply "damnable," is only a different form of tactics to effect the same end. It was headed in glaring capitals:

A WARNING.

JONES, FOLEY, JENNINGS,

and then went on to say that all of the terrible sufferings of the working men and their families were due solely to Mr. GEORGE JONES and Mr. LOUIS J. JENNINGS, of the TIMES, and Mr. FOLEY, the mover of the Barnard injunction. These gentlemen alone were responsible, and their dwellings, (the locations of which were also given by street and number,) should be pulled down about their ears, if the work against the Tammany Ring did not instantly cease. The spirit of the article may be well judged of by its conclusion, which is as follows: "We learn that there are, all told, 5,000 men in the Park employ. Why not hold a mass-meeting at the Fifty-ninth-street entrance to the Park, and give solid utterance to the protests which privately come from every mouth.

Protest against JOHN FOLEY and his conduct—

Protest against GEORGE JONES and his TIMES—

Protest against LOUIS J. JENNINGS and his libels—

And protest against the infamy which, for a political and partisan end, blocks the wheels of the City, shuts the door of the Treasury, and virtually compels employers to starve their men and the little ones depending upon them!"

"God forbid," said an intelligent laborer who called at the TIMES office yesterday evening, "that my fellow-laborers should heed these wicked counsels. It will be the blackest day that New-York ever witnessed!"

The laboring men employed by the City do not fail to understand to whom they are indebted for the deprivation of their wages. A large number of the more intelligent ones have called at the TIMES office within the past few days, and have given expression to their sentiments in language not very flattering to the worthy trio, HALL, TWEED and SWEENY. To these three thieves they attribute all their sufferings, and characterize as infamous the miserable attempt of the ruptured Ring to shift the blame upon the shoulders of those who have exposed its rascality. Of Mr. A. OAKEY HALL, they were very bitter in their denunciations, and spoke of him as a pitiful mountebank, incapable of even covering up his own dirty work. To Mr. PETER B. SWEENY they alluded in the most decided manner, and pronounced his action in trumpeting to the community his "unparalleled generosity" as an insult to their intelligence quite too apparent to deceive any but the most ignorant.

Yesterday evening WILLIAM HARRIS, residing at No. 650 One Hundred and Sixth-street, near Tenth-avenue, called at the TIMES office. Mr. HARRIS is the foreman of a gang of laborers working on the Croton water-pipes on Tenth-avenue, and is an intelligent man. He expressed himself explicitly and in a very coherent manner. He said that the men engaged upon the public works were unquestionably very much exasperated at the failure of the City authorities to pay them their wages due for six weeks' labor. He stated that yesterday afternoon a body of about 300 stopped their work, and marched down Tenth-avenue as far as Ninety-sixth-street, where they were met by another party, who told them that they had just been paid at the office of the Superintendent, near Ninety-second-street. The party, headed by Mr. HARRIS, were persuaded to return to their work upon being assured that the Superintendent would have them paid during the afternoon, and that they would be sent for when the pay-master's wagon arrived. That promise, Mr. HARRIS states, was violated, and he added that today, unless the promise is fulfilled, the entire body of unpaid laborers will march to the City Hall and demand their pay. Mr. HARRIS said that the majority of the workmen knew full well the individuals who are responsible for the present condition of affairs, and upon them alone would rest the responsibility if any serious trouble grew out of their sufferings. In conclusion, he spoke in the strongest terms of the infamous article which appeared in the Forger's paper yesterday. Although it pretends to be the working man's organ, he said, no sensible man would listen to its terrible promptings. And this he added, confidently, was the sentiment of the great body of his fellow-laborers.

Said one of the most eminent gentlemen in New-York, yesterday, after reading the vile threat: "Let them try it. If lawlessness and mob rule are to be repeated in New-York, the lawless will find us prepared, and woe be unto the deluded masses who heed the promptings of these three desperate men. They will find the people are not disposed to trifle. They will find them terribly in earnest—and if bloodshed is forced upon them, those who precipitated the conflict will rue it more than words can express." The expression of indignation at the last desperate manœuvre of the Ring was confined alone to private individuals, but the evening Press, irrespective of party, denounced the threat in the strongest and most unequivocal manner, as will be seen in the following extracts:

From the Telegram.

A two cent morning paper, owned by the "Ring," or at least, partly owned by them, we know not nor do we care which, publishes this morning one of the most outrageously incendiary articles it has ever been our misfortune to read. It is headed "A Warning—JONES, FOLEY, JENNINGS," and proceeds to charge these three individuals that with "purely vexatious proceeding they today imperil the employment of more than 5,000 men upon the public parks, threaten to take the bread and milk from their wives and babies, and virtually incite a bread riot, born of necessity, hunger and desperation."

It then proceeds to give the number of the houses and streets where these parties above named reside, evidently with a view to incite an attack upon these three men at their homes, and urges that, with a beck, a nod, or a word, they may avert all sorts of untold suffering among the laborers, and save some awful impending disturbance, which latter, it argues, inferentially and with cunningly chosen words, to be the only recourse of the workmen.

A more infamous article has not appeared in any New-York newspaper since the publication of the notorious bogus proclamation during the war. And what can the public think of this "warning," when they are informed that it proceeds from the same source as that "proclamation."

It is notorious that the paper alluded to is circulated mainly among the laboring classes, and pretends to be their champion. But the laboring classes should know that that paper was purchased by its present owners only to disseminate their views among the poorer classes, not as a convenience for those classes. As a Democratic morning journal once aptly put it "it is carried on by its Tammany masters, to do their cursing in the slums."

We caution the laborers against being incited by this "warning" to what its authors manifestly desire them to do. No doubt the Tammany Ring would be glad to see a riot in this City just now to divert public attention from their crimes, and would gladly charge it to the "partisans" who are hunting them down. The workmen have the sympathy of all good citizens in their present difficulty; but let them resort to riot and they will be put down if the City should be overturned in doing it.

Further than this the same paper asserts that PETER B. SWEENY'S "interference and generosity" has already put loaves in the cupboards of these hungry toilers by the raising last week of $112,000 to pay them off. We say that no money of that $112,000 has yet been paid to any laborer. Mr. SWEENY talked of it, and had he done it as he promised, his "interference" would have been "generous;" but he must not try to make capital out of such emergencies by "talk." If he does we shall expose it whenever we can do so.

From the Commercial Advertiser.

When the Star indulges in language such as it uses today, and which evidently instigates violence on the part of the laborers against those whom it holds responsible for the dead-lock in the City, it should remember, and caution others, that "those who take the sword shall perish by the sword." New-York is tired of riots, and rioters have had no reason heretofore to be proud of their success in stirring up "civil dudgeon."

From the Evening Mail.

We advise the responsible Tammany leaders, for their own sakes, to restrain the folly and wickedness of followers who are attempting to intimidate those who are prominent in the work of reform. Threats generally recoil with disastrous effect on their authors, and ought always to be disregarded and frowned down by sensible men.

From the Brooklyn Union.

But there is published in New-York in the interest of the Ring a daily newspaper of insignificant influence among thinking men, but which is read to considerable extent by the low Irish and the population usually employed on the public works. This morning this paper made itself the medium of one of the most criminal attempts to excite riot and bloodshed that ever disgraced the pages of a partisan journal. It declared openly and by insinuation that Mr. FOLEY, the originator of the suit against the City, and Messrs. JONES and JENNINGS, of the TIMES, were directly responsible for the threatened stoppage of wages, and that it was in their power to insure the payment of the laborers by a discontinuance of the suit, and the dissolution of the injunction. It named these men individually, gave the streets and numbers of their residences, doing so with suggestive repetition; and with staring head-lines it dwelt upon the imminency of starvation to the working men on the parks and their families, and by the most artful implications incited these ignorant men to a bread riot and to bloodshed.

These were the tactics of Tammany on the fatal Twelfth of July. It was then, as it is now, the tactics of desperadoes, and would be met now, as it was then, with the sternest vengeance.

As an evidence of the extent to which public affairs in the Metropolis have fallen under the demoralizing influence of foreigners, this infamous production is solemnly suggestive. Never before in the history of American journalism has the press been known to attempt the thwarting of justice by appeals to the passions of an ignorant mob, by incitement to incendiarism and bloodshed; and the disgraceful authors of this are guilty of constructive arson and murder in the estimation of every good citizen of the country.

From the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser.

The New-York Star of this morning has a leading article heading "A Warning," which is an open appeal to "5,000 laborers" in the employ of the Park Commission to mob the house of Mr. JOHN FOLEY, who procured the injunction against the four thieves, which it designates over again as being at No. 20 East Seventy-third-street; also the house of Mr. GEORGE JONES, No. 10 West Thirty-seventh-street, and also the TIMES Office, and the editor, Mr. LOUIS J. JENNINGS, on the ground that they will be discharged on Saturday, without pay, owing to the injunction granted to Mr. FOLEY by Judge BARNARD. Why not mob Judge BARNARD himself, and burn his house? Says the Star:

"The three graces, G. JONES, JOHN FOLEY and LOUIS J. JENNINGS, may prefer to close their eyes to the storm which threatens to whelm them, but we advise them to wait. By a purely vexatious proceeding they today imperil the employment of more than 5,000 men upon the public parks, threaten to take the bread and milk from their wives and babies, and virtually invite a bread riot, born of necessity, hunger and desperation. With one word G. JONES, proprietor of the TIMES newspaper, and LOUIS J. JENNINGS, his manager, could induce JOHN FOLEY, the plaintiff in the suit against the City, to give notice of a discontinuance of it, &c. This action on the part of Mr. JOHN FOLEY, who lives at No. 20 East Seventy-third-street," &c., &c.

Thus, with its repeated reminders to the laborers that they are "5,000 strong," and its reiterations of the precise number and street where these gentlemen reside and do business, pointing out the path of vengeance to a mob who would be striking their best friends if they acted on such advice, is simply scoundrelly and hellish—a more than repetition of the scenes of the 12th of July, when a score of fools sought death on a fool's errand.

Payment of Workmen Commenced by Deputy Controller Green.

The payment of the laborers on the Croton Aqueduct commenced yesterday, and is made by Mr. A. G. CADY, of the Controller's office, by moneys obtained by Deputy Controller GREEN from the banks. The men are being paid up-town, where they are at work.

The School Teachers to be Paid.

The following correspondence passed yesterday between the President of the Broadway Bank and Deputy Controller GREEN, by which it will be seen that the school teachers will be paid at an early day.

NATIONAL BROADWAY BANK, }
NEW-YORK, Sept. 27, 1871. }

A. H. Green, Deputy Controller:

DEAR SIR: This bank has been requested by the President and officers of the Board of Public Instruction to advance the salaries now due to the principals and teachers employed by said Board. If the same meets your approval please signify the same in writing. Most respectfully, yours,

F. A. PALMER, President.

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, }
CONTROLLER'S OFFICE, Sept. 27, 1871. }

F. A. Palmer, Esq., President of Broadway Bank.

DEAR SIR: I have received your letter, stating that the Broadway Bank has been requested to advance the salaries now due to the principals and teachers of the public schools, and asking if the same meets my approval.

I certainly can have no objection, but, on the contrary, should feel personally much gratified if your bank was so kind as to advance the amounts of their salaries to those deserving public servants. At the same time it is my duty to add that I am unable to say how speedily the bank can be repaid, though I should be anxious to accomplish that result at the earliest practicable day. Very respectfully yours,

ANDREW H. GREEN, Deputy Controller.

The Injunction Against the City Officials—Important Order from Judge Barnard.

All doubts which might have existed in the minds of the public officials, or the public, in relation to the effect of Judge BARNARD'S injunction on the prosecution of the public improvements under the Commissioners of Public Parks, have now been set at rest by an order made by Judge BARNARD modifying his original injunction in this respect. This order, it will be noticed, however is, in reality, no modification at all, but merely puts upon the record, in an authoritative form, the Judge's own interpretation of the effect of the injunction, as given by him from the Bench at the time of rendering his decision continuing it in force, and published in the report of the TIMES. It may also be added that this application of Controller VAN NORT was made at the instance of Deputy Controller GREEN, who desired to have clear judicial sanction for his acts, in honoring the requisitions of the Park Commissioners for moneys.

The following is the affidavit of Controller VAN NORT, of the Department of Public Parks, and the order of Judge BARNARD:

SUPREME COURT.—JOHN FOLEY vs. The Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New-York, and others.—City and County of New-York, ss.: GEORGE M. VAN NORT, of said City, being duly sworn, says: That he is Controller in the Department of Public Parks in said City; that said Department has no moneys on hand, or under its control, wherewith to pay the laborers or employes therein, or wherewith to purchase tools and material necessary for the prosecution of the public works, under its charge. Further, that requisitions have been made according to law upon the Controller of said City for moneys to be applied by said Department toward the labor and works aforesaid, but that said Controller has neglected to respond thereto, although frequent application has been made by deponent therefor. GEORGE W. VAN NORT.

Sworn to before me this 27th day of September, 1871. WILLIAM H. BANKER,
Notary Public New-York City.

ORDER OF JUDGE BARNARD.

SUPREME COURT.—JOHN FOLEY vs. The Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York and others.—At a Special Term—present, Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, Sept. 27, 1871.—On the application on behalf of the Department of Public Parks of the City of New-York: Ordered, That the injunction granted on this action, so far as it prevents the issuing and disposal of any bonds of the City of New-York for park improvements, or so far as it affects the issuing and disposal of any assessment or other bonds of said City or County for the improvement of boulevards or avenues, or so far as it affects the raising of any moneys to be applied by the Department of Public Parks toward the prosecution of any public work under their care or control, be and the same is hereby vacated and annulled.

Further, That nothing contained in any injunction granted in this action shall be held or construed as a restraint upon the Controller of said City or the Board of Apportionment therein, from issuing any bonds of said City and County, or taking any measures for the purpose of raising money, for which requisition has been made by the said Department of Public Parks, or which such Department may hereafter deem necessary in the prosecution of the several works and improvements under their charge, or for the payment of laborers and contractors of said Department or other objects or expenditure of said Department.

GEORGE G. BARNARD.

Immediately after the reception of Judge BARNARD'S order, Mr. GREEN sent the following note to the Department of Parks:

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, }
CONTROLLER'S OFFICE, Sept. 27, 1871. }

To the Department of Public Parks:

Since my communication of the 26th inst. was prepared, a copy of an order of the Supreme Court relative to the injunction in the Foley case has been received at this Department, and will receive early attention. ANDREW H. GREEN,
Deputy Controller.

No Reward Offered for the Stolen Vouchers.

An erroneous impression prevails that a reward of $1,000 has been offered for information leading to the conviction of the persons who stole the vouchers from the Finance Department, and $1,000 additional for the recovery of the vouchers. The Mayor suggested to the Common Council some time ago that such rewards should be offered, but no action has been taken thereon, and it is believed that none will be.

The Two Committees.

The Committee of Seventy did not meet yesterday, nor was anything made public in regard to their future movements. A number of the members of the Investigating Committee were at their rooms yesterday afternoon, and held a conference, the subject of which was not disclosed. During the last few days none of the Aldermen or Supervisors have visited the Committee-rooms, and nothing can be learned as to the probability of another public session being held.

Corson Indorses His Master.

A regular meeting of the Seventh Ward Cornelius Corson Association was held at No. 68 East Broadway, last evening, WM. S. EGAN, President, in the chair. The following resolutions were unanimously carried:

Whereas, WILLIAM M. TWEED is a candidate for Senator of the Fourth Senatorial District, and

Whereas, His political career from 1851 to the present time has been mainly devoted to the interests of the orphan and the laboring community at large,

Resolved, That in gratitude for his services to the Democratic Party, and his many noble charities, we nominate him for Senator in the next Legislature; and

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to present a copy of these resolutions to Hon. WM. M. TWEED.

Other resolutions were passed, approving EDWARD J. SHANDLEY as candidate for Registership, and P. H. KEENAN for Police Justice.

A Hoax About the Stolen Vouchers.

A story was printed in several of the evening papers yesterday, to the effect that one THOMPSON C. DUNN, a well-known Tammany politician of the Ninth Ward, had been arrested for suspected complicity in the voucher burglary, and had been held in $3,000 bail by Justice DOWLING to appear for trial when wanted. There was no record of any such matter in any of the Police Courts, and extended inquiry among the Police did not obtain the least confirmation of the story, as no one had even heard of the arrest. Capt. IRVING and Detective MCCORD both declared that they had no knowledge of it, and were certain that if anything of the kind had occurred they must have known it. In order, however, that the denial might have the most authoritative shape search was made for Superintendent KELSO. That officer could not be found in his office after midday, nor did any of his subordinates know where he could be found. Late in the evening, however, the missing Superintendent sent word to Police Head-quarters by one of his officers that there was not a word of truth in the story of DUNN'S arrest. This was sufficiently precise, and no further effort was made to ascertain the details of an affair which had never happened.

The Germans at Work.

The German Democratic Committee of the Eleventh Ward, at a meeting at No. 642 Fifth-street, last night, indorsed the action of the German Democratic General Committee in arraying itself against the Ring rule of corrupt Tammany.

Under the auspices of the German Democratic Ward Committee of the Tenth Ward, a meeting of German Democrats was held at No. 122 Forsyth-street, last evening, to take action against the Tammany Ring, and to secure the defeat of that corrupt organization in the approaching campaign.

HARLEM AROUSED.

Enthusiastic Mass-Meeting of Tax-Payers—Stirring Resolutions and Speeches Against the Ring.

The Tax-payers' and Citizens' Association of the Twelfth Ward, comprising all the respectable and influential men of the district, met at Lincoln Hall, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, last night. The audience was large and in earnest, and during the progress of the meeting there was the utmost enthusiasm evinced by all present. On the platform were the following gentlemen: Ex-Mayor Tiemann, President; Shepherd Knapp, William H. Caldwell, Addison Smith, B. T. Raynor, William B. Asten, Dr. T. M. Peters, Henry Schubart, W. G. Woods, H. Medig, L. N. Fuller, E. H. Gillett and L. Adams, Vice-Presidents; Charles H. Kitchell, W. T. Ryerson, Henry Friedman and Wm. Lockwood, Secretaries.

On calling the assemblage to order, Mr. TIEMANN stated the object of the Association—of which last night's was the first public meeting—to be the furtherance of the movement on foot now for municipal reform, as also to work to that end in this district. After this introduction the Secretary read the following resolutions, presented by the Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, E. H. BROWN, and they were enthusiastically adopted:

Whereas, The Government of the City of New-York, through a series of deeply planned schemes and legislative enactments in practice has become fearfully corrupt and debased throughout, the public funds squandered and stolen, the property of the entire county bonded for untold millions of dollars, and the people tauntingly inquired, "What are you going to do about it?" therefore,

Be it Resolved, By the tax-payers and citizens of the Twelfth Ward, without distinction of party politics, that the time has fully come wherein the present heads of the City Government and their accomplices, who have been or may be proven unworthy of public confidence, be removed from office of trust or honor at the earliest possible day, and that none but honest and capable men be placed in their stead.

Resolved, That the City Charter but recently inaugurated be revised and amended by the next State Legislature in the sole interest of the people, giving equal and fair protection of person and property, thorough provision for the public education of all classes, equitable laws and impartial enforcement thereof, economy in all expenditures of moneys, and that we hereby pledge our united co-operation with all right-minded citizens to procure and maintain an honest municipal Government.

Resolved, That the NEW-YORK TIMES fully merits the voice of thanks, hearty approval and support of the entire community for the pioneer and persistent labor of exposing in detail the astounding robberies of our City authorities.

Resolved, That this organization unanimously approve of the "Committee of Seventy," and hereby express full confidence in the early substantiation of the public frauds, and punishment of the guilty, and, if possible, recovery of the stolen funds.

Resolved, That in the selection of our able and tried citizen, ANDREW H. GREEN, to be the Deputy Controller of New-York—in fact, its chief financial officer—we are thereby assured that no more nefarious City bonds will be issued and the proceeds filched, no more false pay-rolls or political sinecures, and none but honest disbursements for faithful public services will be made by the City and County Treasury.

Resolved, That as the Twelfth Ward is a yet undeveloped, and on that account a rich placer for City jobs, it is especially the duty of the tax-payers and citizens of this Ward to watch closely the expenditures of money for our new Court-house, the laying-out of the boulevards, the opening and improvements of avenues and streets, &c.

Resolved, That it is the indispensable duty of the Twelfth Ward Tax-payers' and Citizens' Association to be vigilant in co-operation with other "anti-Ring," anti-thieving organizations of the district, to see that none but honest and capable men are nominated and elected this Fall to State, County, district, or ward offices, without distinction of party, and that the ballot-box be the true exponent of the honest citizen's vote, and that the Committee of Seventy be permitted to nominate, and the proper authorities appoint, one inspector, one canvasser and one marshal, in each district of the City, and thereby help to prevent the "repeating," "wringing," and "false count" of former years in the City elections soon to be held.

Letters of encouragement and excuse for their inability to attend were sent by Hon. THOS. A. LEDWITH and JAMES W. BEEKMAN. One from Hon. R. B. ROOSEVELT, of great length and full of hearty concurrence in the movement, was likewise read. He says: "However, I give you my warmest sympathies. The battle you are waging is a struggle of the people against corrupt rulers."

After the reading and acceptance of these documents HORATIO P. ALLEN was introduced. He satirized the protestations of honesty and innocence hitherto the only response of the Ring to the specific charges of fraud uttered and published against them by the TIMES. He compared the City debt of a few years ago with that of the present, and showed by its rapid and immense increase how ridiculous was any attempt at denial of the cheat. The speaker concluded with an appeal to the tax-payers and citizens to stand by and co-operate with the Committee of Seventy in its endeavor to unmask the system of robbery and remedy the evil.

Ex-Gov. SALOMON next came forward amid much applause. He likened the City of New-York to a sleeping giant, with arms bound, at the mercy of its enemies. Now it has but just awakened, and struggles hard to free its limbs tied by the Ring's character and the other infamous enactments of the Ring's legislation in the last two years. Unaided the City cannot do so. Our remedies therefore must be sought and used energetically at once. We have remedies, although our affairs look desperate indeed. We cannot impeach the Mayor without the permission of his creatures the Aldermen, nor them without the Mayor's permission. The Governor has been deprived of his power to relieve us by the last Legislature, so that in this state of things the question may well be asked, "What are we going to do about it?" I'll tell you fellow-citizens, said Gov. SALOMON, a short relief, but one to which I hope we shall not yet resort—Revolution. Let us rather strive to enlist the law on our side, and through it get the relief we need. I hope that we may not be driven outside of this legal redress. Better that we put our shoulders to the wheel and strenuously endeavor by means of the ballot, sinking all partisan and party feeling, to have such a Legislature in 1872 as will amend the charter, and enact other laws for the benefit of the people. In conclusion the speaker said that the Democracy was expected to work harder in the field of reform than others, because that party had been duped and used as the vehicle of fraudulent acts by these four men. We will be with you too.

WM. B. ASTEN and L. W. FULLER followed in brief addresses, and the meeting was adjourned.

The Twentieth Ward Democrats will Have None of Tammany's Graduates—Stirring Resolutions—Bradley to Make Way for Sheriff O'Brien.

A meeting of the James O'Brien Club, of the Twentieth Ward, was held last evening at No. 497 Tenth-avenue. Resolutions were passed stating that they would no longer support Tammany graduates, and that they would do all in their power to secure the elevation of Sheriff O'BRIEN as Senator. The last resolution was as follows:

Resolved, That in the EX-Sheriff's election as Senator, the people of this district will administer the most fitting rebuke to SWEENY'S nepotism, HALL'S trickery, TWEED'S treachery, and "Slippery Dick's" robbery.

The Eighteenth Ward Democrats Denounce the Ring—Address of Mr. Feely—The Tammanyites try to Create a Disturbance.

The Eighteenth Ward James O'Brien Association met last night at No. 323 East Twenty-sixth-street. Mr. FEELY, candidate for Assembly on the Anti-Tammany ticket, addressed the meeting eulogizing Mr. O'BRIEN, and he called on those present to use their best efforts to destroy the corrupt and venal Ring which had so long overridden every principle of justice and honesty in the control of municipal affairs. He denounced HALL, TWEED and SWEENY, whom he stigmatized as public robbers and political charlatans. The TIMES has exposed many of their villainies, but there was much yet concealed. He hoped that the robbers would meet with the punishment they so richly deserve. The speaker stigmatized Senator BRADLEY as false to his trust and unworthy the support of honest Democrats. At the conclusion of the meeting a party of Tammany roughs endeavored to raise a row, but they were promptly hurled out of the room. At a pole-raising subsequently in Twenty-seventh-street, the Tammany men made another attempt to create a disturbance, but O'BRIEN'S men soon made them run.

Democratic Reform Primaries.

The Democratic Reform (O'Brien) Democracy held meetings last evening in all the Wards, and elected delegates to a general committee. There was a slight disturbance in the Third Ward, where a party of Tammany roughs carried off the printed tickets, leaving the inspectors but a manuscript copy of the names.

THE TIMES AND TAMMANY.

From the Titusville (Penn.) Herald, Sept. 26.

The power of the Press in chastising vice, combating error and exposing folly has often and often been illustrated. But never in any age or country has there been a more signal exhibition of the vigor and influence of the Press in creating and directing public opinion, than we have lately seen in the course of the NEW-YORK TIMES. Other contemporary journals have aided it with their characteristic power, but the TIMES began this crusade on Tammany, and has kept up an unceasing fire, and with prodigious effect. The effect, indeed, of the demolition of Tammany is not confined to the Metropolis alone, but is felt in the remotest confines of the Union. The old virus of the Democratic system was slavery, and the new virus, equally fatal to liberty, is corruption. It had pervaded and vitiated the elective franchise, the very fountain spring on whose purity depend the very life of Republican institutions. It had made the Legislature of the chief state in the Union the register of its edicts, and the chief city of the country its bond-slave, the mere creature of its will. It has kept Judges in its pay, and given immunity to crime and license to vice, pandering the most besotted prejudices of the worst elements of society. But worst of all, Tammany had muzzled the Press—not only the Democratic Press of the whole country which became its parasite and echo, but even purchased the silence of some of the neutral and Republican Press of New-York City. The courage of the TIMES in calling in question the acts of Tammany seemed to the timid of the Republican Party foolish, while the Democracy only jeered at the attack as an impotent effort of a despicable virtue. But the laugh is turned. The Tammany gang is broken up, its leaders are in flight; the flight for criminals covered by shame, with plunder protrading from every pocket, the legs of their boots, their clenched hands, each pointing at the other as the worst of the lot, the whole Press now joining in the chorus with the TIMES, and Sing Sing in full view.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

HERR WACHTEL'S REPRESENTATIONS.

"La Dame Blanche" was sung at the Stadt Theatre, last evening, with the flattering artistic and pecuniary results which bid fair to attend each incident in Herr WACHTEL'S career in this country. In other words, that gentleman's performance was exceedingly fine, and his audience extremely large and enthusiastic. Herr WACHTEL'S personation of George Brown is quite as complete in conception and detail as his sketch of the romantic postillion, and much more striking by reason of the increased opportunities offered by the composition. Of these it would have been pardonable had an American audience shown some ignorance, though an air of general expectancy and subsequent demonstrations of approval proved that the indulgence was not needed. Herr WACHTEL'S excellent vocal condition, thorough culture, and unwavering spirit, would in any event have made the notable numbers of a charming score conspicuous. The reduction, by broad cuts, of the libretto and music did not, of course, lessen the tenor's share in the night's entertainment, and all the known airs were retained. Without disregarding the heartiness of Herr WACHTEL'S delivery of the opening couplets, commencing, "Ah! quel plaisir," we should have liked in it a little more freedom of phrasing than the artist allowed himself. In the first act, the duet having been omitted, his most finished bit was in the trio, when his delicious mezza-voce effects and a skillful alternations of chest and head tones were listened to with almost irrepressible delight. In the second, the cavatina, "Viens, gentille dame," was recited with rare sentiment and immense variety of expression, unspoiled by experimental passages or inappropriate ornament, and the crescendo e diminuendo of the tone at the end was done with consummate art. In the third act, Herr WACHTEL'S triumph was won in the Scotch air—a song without words—rendered with infinite feeling, and with a surety as to which there could not be two opinions. A cadenza rising to the tenor's high chest-note rounded off this piece, which was redemanded with so evident a determination to hear it that it was repeated. In mentioning these points in "La Dame Blanche" it should be understood that we do not hope, by so doing, to commend, in an adequate manner, Herr WACHTEL'S delineation of George Brown. The excellences of the eminent singer and comedian now at the Stadt are not to be represented by hurried words of praise bearing on a few features only of a very elaborate and finished picture. By his acting alone, Herr WACHTEL, as George Brown, would command wide admiration. No player could transact the stage-business of the whole three acts with more conscientiousness, heed of circumstances, animation or versatility. His martial bearing when first introduced to the villagers; the soldatesque gallantry of his dealings—sadly curtailed by the pruning-knife—with Jenny; the eloquence of his summons to the mysterious dweller in the castle; his contagious jollity and merry recklessness in the auction scene, and, lastly, his facial as well as his vocal utterance while seeking to recall, musically, the distant past, are entitled to far warmer encomiums than the usual brief record of a satisfying rendering imply. Of the support Herr WACHTEL had last evening, it is not necessary to speak at length. It was supplied by Herren FRANOSCH and LAUTERBACH, and Mmes. PERL and KRAUSS. "La Dame Blanche" will be given again on Friday.

ENGLISH OPERA.

We need hardly remind persons interested in musical affairs that the season of English opera at the Academy will be commenced on Monday next. But a notice that the sale of seats for single nights will begin on Friday may be offered as news, seats hitherto having been secured for the whole series of performances only.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Excitement Over the State Conventions—Preliminary Arrangements by the Commissioners of Claims—Speeches of Secretary Boutwell—Important Post-Office Order.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The interest with which affairs in New-York and Massachusetts are regarded here can hardly be exceeded by the interest elsewhere. The TIMES' office has been thronged all the evening with people anxious for the latest intelligence from Syracuse and Worcester. The indications of a harmonious result in the one case, and of the defeat of BUTLER in the other, are received with great satisfaction.

ORGANIZATION OF THE TREATY COMMISSION.

The British American Claims Commission, at the meeting at the State Department today, concluded their permanent organization by the selection of Count CORTI as Chairman, and THOS. C. COX, Esq., of the State Department, as Secretary. The Commission also agreed upon rules and regulations for the conduct of their business, viz.: Regulating forms of memorials, prescribing the manner of taking testimony and the manner of bringing on causes for final hearing. These preliminaries being completed there remains nothing for the Commission to do until cases are ready for a hearing. An adjournment was therefore taken until the 14th of November. In the meantime the business will be mainly in the hands of the Agents of the respective Governments in the preparation of proofs, &c., in the various cases. So much of the rules as prescribes the form of memorials and the manner of taking testimony will be published at once for the information of interested parties. The Commission have taken three floors of the building at No. 703 Fifteenth-street, opposite the Treasury, as a Court-room and for the offices of counsel and agents.

CAMPAIGN SPEECHES OF SECRETARY BOUTWELL.

Secretary BOUTWELL'S speech at Cincinnati, to-morrow night, it is understood, will be mainly devoted to a review of the financial achievements of President GRANT'S Administration, and as may well be supposed, it will be a solid array of stern facts set forth with the inexorable conviction of truth. At Cleveland, he will discuss the attitude of the Democratic Party toward the Constitutional amendments, and say something also with reference to the designs of that party in regard to the banking system, tariff, &c.

POST-OFFICE ABUSE CORRECTED.

A practice out of which has grown two removals lately, has sprung up in some of the larger Post-offices, of requiring the employes to sign the pay-rolls in blank. The Postmaster-General has issued a circular order putting a stop to it, as follows:

A practice has obtained in some of the larger Post-offices of requiring the clerks and other employes to sign the pay-rolls in blank. This practice is wrong, and must be discontinued at once. Before obtaining the signatures of such clerks or employes the amount due each at the end of each quarter should be placed opposite their respective names upon the pay-roll.

[Signed.] JOHN A. J. CRESSWELL,
Postmaster-General.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hon. H. F. OTTO, the representative of the United States on the Spanish Claims Commission, arrived here today, and a session of that Court will be held next week. As yet the number of claims prepared for a hearing is very small.

The acquittal of Ex-Postmaster SIMMS, of Atlanta, of the charge of embezzlement, was owing to the peculiar ruling of Judge ERSKINE, and the general disinclination of juries at the South to render a verdict against a man where the Government is on the other side. This man SIMMS had misappropriated $23,000 of the money-order funds placed in his hands, in direct violation of law, beside some $10,000 of General Post-office funds. Every claim which could be legitimately allowed under the laws and regulations of the Post-Office Department was admitted in order to enable him to settle. And yet he was $30,000 short. On his defense he set up a plea that he had used this money in fitting up the Post-Office. It was not proven that he had been authorized to do so, but the Judge held that if the jury found that the Government had subsequently made use of the improvements thus made, they could not find him guilty of embezzlement. Through this loop-hole he escaped. As neither SIMMS nor his bondsmen are responsible, a civil action will be useless, and the Government will lose the amount. SIMMS was appointed by JOHNSON and removed by GRANT.

Acting Commissioner CURTIS, of the General Land Office, has just approved for patenting certain cash entries, covering lands embraced in the town sites of Helena, Virginia City, Bozeman and Deer Lodge in Montana Territory. These towns contain populations variously estimated from 500 to 600, and with areas of from 40 to 569 acres in extent. In the town of Helena a business of $25,000,000 annually is carried on by the inhabitants.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

Misrepresentations in Respect to Mr. Disraeli's Speech—Opening of the Bavarian Parliament—Reported Willingness of the Austrian Emperor to Abdicate.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Pall Mall Gazette denounces the Daily Telegraph of this morning for the misinterpretation of a sentence in Mr. DISRAELI'S speech in regard to the Queen, as flagrantly dishonest as ever appeared in an English journal. It declares that if Mr. GLADSTONE keeps such company as the editors of that journal, none but the rabble will follow him.

MUNICH, Sept. 27.—The session of the Landtag was opened today by Prince LUITPOLD.

VIENNA, Sept. 27.—A rumor is current here that the Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH is seriously disposed to abdicate. The cause assigned is despondency at his conscious unfitness for the constitutional crisis which threatens the dissolution of the Austrian Empire.

INDIAN MATTERS.

Trouble Feared in Dakota from the Action of the Indian Ring—Removal of the Cherokees.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Gen. JOHN A. LOGAN sent a telegram to the Secretary of the Interior today, stating that he had received a dispatch from Indian Agent WHAM, at Fort Laramie, who represents that a "Ring" is running the White Earth Reservation in Dakota Territory, and unless it is broken up he, Agent WHAM, fears serious troubles.

Col. COX and Friend LANG go to North Carolina to-morrow night, to remove the Cherokees to the Indian Territory. Clothing and other supplies have already been forwarded. They will probably be three or four weeks removing Cherokees. The transportation will be made by rail and steam-boat. The Secretary of the Interior has sent these Indians an address prepared by the Commissioner, assuring them of ample protection, good faith, and kindness on the Government.

Yellow Fever at Natchez.

The Baton Rouge (La.) Gazette, of Sept. 23, contained the following:

"The yellow fever is authentically reported in the town of Natchez. Twenty-three cases are reported since yesterday morning, and also seven deaths, four of which were known to be of black vomit. The fever is supposed to have been brought there in woolen goods, and originated from the unpacking of the same. The town authorities of that place are having all persons afflicted with the fever removed from the corporation to comfortable quarters, where they can be attended to without exposing the disease to the thickly populated portion of the place. The first appearance of the fever was Under-the-Hill of that place, and we are informed that the authorities contemplate the immediate establishment of quarantine regulations."

The Natchez Courier, of the 20th, says:

"The following-named persons, who died Under-the-Hill, on Monday evening last, were reported to the city sexton by the attending physician as having died with yellow fever. They were interred yesterday: MARY DIENTSBACK, aged twelve years; HENRY SCHATZ, aged ten years; ELIZABETH DIENTSBACK, aged five years. Five or six persons now sick are reported by Drs. HARPER, INGE and DAVIS as having the yellow fever. Dr. MENU reports two cases in Vidalia. It may be well to remark that the fever, so far, seems to be confined to the Under-the-Hill district, otherwise the health of the city is good."

Probable Homicide on a Pier.

GEORGE RICHARDSON, thirty-nine years of age, of No. 40 Cherry-street, has for some time been employed in guarding a lot of old iron on Pier No. 49 East River. Yesterday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, four youths went upon the pier, and, it is alleged, were attempting to steal the iron, when RICHARDSON fired upon them. The ball took effect upon WM. KENNEY, aged eighteen years, of No. 651 Water-street, inflicting a wound which it is expected will prove fatal. Patrolman ROUGHAN, of the Seventh Precinct, arriving immediately after the shooting, arrested RICHARDSON, who was taken to the Madison-

Today, at the Exchange, A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO. will offer at public auction a very desirable lot of property, consisting of two plots of ground, with cottages thereon, and also some 150 building lots, located at Nyack, Rockland County. The sale of a house and lot on Seventy-third-street, between Fourth and Lexington avenues, takes place at the Exchange on Tuesday next, Oct. 3, instead of today, as erroneously noticed in this column on Monday. In suburban sections today, that at Richmond Hill, Long Island, conducted by JOHNSON & MILLER, at which 300 lots will be offered, is attracting considerable attention from investors, and will undoubtedly result successfully, as the property is really valuable and all that it has been represented to be. Sale on the ground at 12½ o'clock. Special train from foot of South Eighth-street, Williamsburg, at 11 A. M. A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BROTHER will also sell at Newark, N. J., today, 100 building lots situated in one of the best sections of that city.

In reference to the sale of country-seat at Vanderbilt Landing, Staten Island, made yesterday, a report, if received, will be made tomorrow.

Exchange Sales Wednesday, Sept. 27.

OF ILLINOIS.

This is a COMPLETED Road 91 miles in length, connecting the important Cities of Peoria on the Illinois River, and Rock Island, Moline and Davenport, on the Mississippi. Davenport, on the opposite bank of the river, is connected by a railway bridge. The last rail of this road was laid July 7, 1871, and the line is now open and being operated with a success exceeding all anticipation. In order to place upon the road the large equipment necessary for the business offered, and to construct depots, car and engine-houses, machine-shops, &c., equal to any of the best old roads in the country, as is now required of this, the Company offer, through the undersigned, $1,500,000 convertible first mortgage gold bonds, which cover the entire property of the Company, and is less than $17,000 per mile. PRESENT PRICE, 90, AND ACCRUED INTEREST IN CURRENCY. Principal and interest payable in coin at New-York or London, free of tax.

This road, opened for the transport local as well as through traffic, now offered, will prove one of the most profitable in the West, traversing as it does a section of country unsurpassed in fertility, of soil and agriculture. Prosperous, already thickly populated and in a high state of cultivation. This is self-evident from the fact that every section of the road passes through cultivated fields and many flourishing towns and villages, with a large city and navigable river at each end. Railroads in the West have been heretofore constructed through unsettled and uncultivated regions of the country, consequently have had but little local traffic to depend upon for several years after construction. But the Peoria and Rock Island Railway is a first class COMPLETED road, with NO PARALLEL or COMPETING LINE, and RUNS THROUGH ONE OF THE RICHEST AGRICULTURAL, MANUFACTURING AND MOST POPULOUS DISTRICTS IN THE WEST. Thus it is certain that the local business is already more than enough to sustain the road, while the through traffic is unlimited, as its connections are numerous, which can be seen by a glance at the map.

This road is a grand central link, to which many of the principal lines centralize and diverge to all parts of the continent.

We invite the attention of investors to this loan. Being familiar with the wealth and resources of the country along the line of this railway and a MEMBER OF OUR FIRM HAVING MADE A CAREFUL EXAMINATION OF THE ROAD AND ITS PROPERTY, WE CAN WITH THE UTMOST CONFIDENCE RECOMMEND THE BONDS AS A PRIME SECURITY, reliable and safe in every particular.

All marketable securities received in exchange at full rates, and bonds delivered to all parts of the country, free of express charges.

Maps, circulars, &c., with full particulars relating to the road, furnished on application by the undersigned, Financial Agents of the Company.

Yesterday morning a couple of East New-York roughs commenced insulting females who were passing. A gentleman remonstrated with them, when they turned on him and commenced an unprovoked assault, knocking him down and kicking him severely. Officer JOSEPH SMITH, of the Ninth Sub-Precinct, in making an attempt to arrest one of them, named EDWARD HEALY, was knocked down. The officer sprang to his feet, and wielding his baton broke it over the ruffian's head. Both of the rowdies are now in the Ninth Precinct Station-house, and are so badly beaten as to be unfit to be brought into Court. A hearing will be given them as soon as they are presentable.
